County Sets Up Pay Boosts for 180 Employes

WAGE INCREASE INCLUDED IN APPROPRIATION

Amount Expected to Range Up to 10 Per Cent, Officials Indicate.

Cost of living wage increases expected to range up to 10 per cent for Richland county's 180-odd employes are being considered by department heads and the county commissioners, it was revealed today.

Because of divided authority in the distribution of county money, however, no county official would say definitely how much the increase would be.

"Off-the-record" statements from department heads indicated that the wage hikes would be established on a percentage basis, the maximum being 10 per cent.

The commissioners are the appropriating authority and each department head determines how much he can afford, within his appropriation, for salaries. Department heads said they can't tell what they can afford to pay until they know what their appropriations will be.

The final answer will come some time after Jan. 6 when the commissioners are expected to pass their annual appropriation bill.

County Auditor Norman L. Wolfe said his preliminary work on the appropriation bill indicates the general fund, out of which most of the salaries will be paid, will be about $35,000 greater than this year's total of approximately $495,000.

"All department heads want more money in 1947, partly so they can give wage increases. Right now it looks like the various department appropriations will be five to 15 per cent higher than this year's," Wolfe said.

"It seems to be the concensus of the department heads that county wages should be increased to a figure comparable to work outside public service. They definitely aren't at that level now," he said.

The auditor, who issues the payroll checks for all county employes, estimated that present salaries for courthouse workers range from $140 to $260.

Last year the commissioners granted increased appropriations to most departments with the understanding that $10-a-month wage increases would be granted.

Wolfe pointed out that the salary issue is a difficult one this year because of unexpected supplemental appropriations totaling some $60,000 made on an emergency basis to various departments during the year.

REDS COMMAND U. S. VESSEL TO LEAVE DAIREN

Officials Give Ship Just 20 Minutes to Quit Port.

By WILLIAM H. NEWTON
(Representing the Combined World Press)

DAIREN, Manchuria, Dec. 20 — (Delayed) — (AP) — A United States Navy ship pulled out of the Port of Dairen this afternoon after receiving a verbal ultimatum from Russian military officials to the effect that "unless you leave within 20 minutes we will not be responsible for the consequences."

Previously, the Russian military commander in charge of the city had refused to permit an American businessman with full clearance from U. S. authorities to debark, also denied permission to land were two American newspapermen, representing the Combined World Press.

(Russian troops have occupied Dairen since the Japanese surrender. Although the Chinese-Russian treaty of 1945 called for its designation as a free port under Chinese administration, Soviet forces still are in control of the city..

(In Washington, the state department said it had received no report of the "verbal ultimatum" and would have no immediate comment.)

The vessel, LC-3 1090, was on a second routine courier mission to Dairen carrying diplomatic mail and supplies to the U. S. consulate there..

In view of the fact that the details of the first trip had been revealed to the press, two correspondents were permitted to take passage on this trip by Rear Admiral Charles M. Cooke, commander of the Seventh fleet, in order to be present in event their going ashore would meet with the approval of local authorities. Admiral Cooke had ruled that no photographs could be made without the consent of the local officials.

The ship arrived in Dairen Dec. 18, and requested permission to remain in port for 48 hours. This was accepted without comment by the Soviet authorities who met the ship at anchorage.

The ship remained in the harbor two additional hours while U. S. Consul General H. Merrill Benninghoff attempted a last minute appeal to the Soviet military authorities to permit an American businessman, Jesse L. Poole, Atlanta, Ga., representing the Standard Vacuum Oil company to go ashore. It was at this point that the Soviet ultimatum was delivered.

COUNCIL TO UP RESERVOIR FUND

Third major phase of Mansfield's Clear Fork water reservoir project will be launched tonight when city council takes action in special meeting to appropriate money for the land clearing work.

Appropriation of some $75,000 for the job virtually will exhaust the original $800,000 Clear Fork fund. Money will then have to be procured to provide for a purification plant and pipe lines.

Bids for the clearing job range from $73,000 to $89,000 with M. P. Teter and John Richardson, partners of Lexington, submitting the lowest bid.

Most of the 2,100 acres needed for the project, designed to triple the city's water supply, have been purchased. Some 100 acres still are to be bargained for. Construction of a $425,000 dam is underway.

BILBO BACKERS ASK FAIR PLAY

WASHINGTON—(INS)—"States' rights" Democratic senators lined up today to insist upon "fair play" for Sen. Bilbo (D., Miss.) from the new Republican majority bent on ousting him from the senate.

Sens. Byrd (D., Va.) and McClellan (D., Ark.) were described by party sources as the two Democrats who probably will take the leadership in demanding consideration of charges against Bilbo "free from partisanship."

Sen. Johnston (D., S. C.) declared that if the Republicans believe the recent war contracts inquiry produced conclusive evidence against Bilbo "they should bring action for impeachment." Johnston indicated he would oppose any move to refuse Bilbo a seat on Jan. 3.

Meanwhile, Bilbo hastened to correct a technical error in his Mississippi certificate of election which might have provided grounds for denying him his seat when the senate opens. The certificate received by Senate Secretary Leslie L. Biffle was incorrectly dated "1947" instead of "1946."

City Ready For Big Christmas

GRANDDAUGHTER OF WILSON DIES

SANTA MONICA, Calif.—(AP)—Twice-divorced Ellen McAdoo de Onate Hinshaw, 31, who as a child played in the White House when her grandfather, Woodrow Wilson, was president, died yesterday in Santa Monica hospital after telephoning a friend, "Well, I've done it."

Her lawyer, Sid Cherniss, and her physician, Dr. Leon Kahn, told police Mrs. Hinshaw, employed as a telephone operator, had frequently hinted at suicide because of financial and family problems.

Detective Joseph Netheny quoted Caroline Willey, a maid at the hotel where Mrs. Hinshaw stayed, as saying Mrs. Hinshaw swallowed some tablets and remarked, "I've put myself to sleep for good."

Netheny said Ben Markson, who lives at the same hotel, told him Mrs. Hinshaw, daughter of the late Sen. William Gibbs McAdoo, telephoned him, "Well, I've done it," and that he immediately notified Dr. Kahn. Dr. Kahn found her unconscious.

Dr. Kahn said she was despondent because she had to share custody of one of her two sons, Billy, 6, with her second husband, William Hinshaw, whom she divorced in 1943. She has another son, Richard, 12, by Rafael Lopez de Onate, Philippines-born Spanish actor whom she married in 1934 and divorced in 1937.

QUADRUPLETS BORN TO BRITISH BRIDE

BALTIMORE, Md.—(INS)—Hospital authorities reported today that a British war bride and her quadruplets—three boys and a girl—are "doing fine."

The babies, who have not yet been weighed, were born to Mr. and Mrs. Charles Henn, of suburban Catonsville, Sunday night, at St. Agnes hospital.

Mrs. Henn, the former Miss Dorothy Gaest of London, met her husband at a service men's dance while he was an army sergeant stationed in England. They were married Jan. 1, 1944 and have one other child about a year old. Henn is employed as a bookbinder.

Shucks! Weatherman Says It May Not Be a White Christmas

Although prospects for more snow in Mansfield dimmed today as mild weather was predicted for tomorrow, a white Christmas here still was a possibility as much of the weekend's snowfall remained on the ground.

Rising temperatures, however, made it likely that most of Ohio would be bare of snow by nightfall.

The Chicago weather bureau looked into its crystal ball and came up with a forecast that most of the nation will be cleared of snow by Christmas morn.

The official prediction for Mansfield and vicinity is cloudy and colder weather tonight and tomorrow, with possibility of light rain late tonight.

Temperatures in Mansfield remained below freezing yesterday, with a high of 32 at Hayesville. The low this morning was 23. Similar temperatures were recorded throughout the state. Hayesville was one of three stations which reported precipitation yesterday. The "dampness" was recorded at .01 inch.

ROBERT WHITE STRICKEN AT 94

Robert White, 94-year-old Mansfield resident, died yesterday at his home, 112 Stewart avenue, after a lingering illness.

Born in Bridgeport, England, Oct. 23, 1852, Mr. White came to the United States in 1869, residing first at Pendleton, Ind., where he married Evangeline Lea, also of Bridgeport. His wife died six years ago.

A resident of the city since 1926, Mr. White was affiliated with the Masonic order in 1874 and was a 32nd degree Mason. He was also a member of the First Christian church.

Funeral services will be conducted Thursday at 1:30 p. m. at the Finefrock funeral home by Rev. Ben F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church assisted by Mansfield Commandery 21, Knights Templar. Burial will be made in Mansfield Memorial park. The family has requested that flowers be omitted.

Surviving are two sons, Charles M. White, South Bend, Ind., and Will J. White, of Wooster; four daughters, Mrs. Marina Friqua of Burley, Idaho, Mrs. B. W. Forkner, Miss Mary Ada White and Miss Evangeline White of Mansfield.

PLANTS CLOSE FOR HOLIDAY

Nearly all of Mansfield's industrial workers will spend Christmas with their families with most plants closing for the day. Some industries will operate with skeleton forces until Jan. 2, giving many workers an eight-day vacation.

Weary businessmen and clerks will welcome the Christmas holiday after the biggest shopping season in the city's history.

Most stores will be open until 9 p. m., today, but they will close at 5:30 p. m., tomorrow to give employes a chance to complete their Christmas preparations.

City building workers will get tomorrow afternoon and Wednesday off. County and state offices will be closed Christmas day.

NO MAIL DELIVERY PLANNED CHRISTMAS

For the first time since 1924, mail was delivered in Mansfield on the Sunday before Christmas. Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said carriers made both a morning and an afternoon delivery of letters, cards and small packages.

This has been the biggest month, the biggest quarter and the biggest year in the history of the Mansfield post office, Ford said.

By this morning, however, the rush was beginning to lessen. There will be no delivery of letters and cards on Christmas day, Ford said, but if there is a sufficient volume of packages an attempt will be made to make a morning delivery Wednsday.

CHURCHES PLAN YULE SERVICES

At least 10 Mansfield churches will usher in Christmas with impressive services tomorrow night. Congregations will bow in reverence to the Christ child and choirs will sing traditional carols in flickering candlelight.

At St. Luke's Lutheran church, services will begin at 10:45 p. m. with a 15-minute organ prelude by Mrs. F. H. Cahall. Her numbers will include: "Christmas Pastorale on Silent Night, Holy Night," by Harker; "The Virgin's Slumber Song," by Edmundson, and "In Bethlehem's Town," by Mueller. She has chosen "March of the Magi," by Harker, as a postlude.

* * *

THE PROCESSION OF THE choirs will begin at 11 p. m., after which Dr. Herbert S. Garnes will preach on the subject, "The Angel's Message." The choirs will sing three numbers.

Highlight of religious observances at the St. John's Evangelical Reformed church will be the candlelight service from 11 p. m. until midnight. The choir, directed by John C. Klinger, will sing, "Still is the Night in Bethlehem," by Spence, and "The First Christmas Morn," by Newton. Dr. Paul H. Saleste will speak on the theme, "The Song from Heaven."

The congregation at St. Mark's Lutheran church will hear a special candlelight service, "On Earth, Peace," at 10:50 p. m. and will join in singing Christmas carols and anthems. Rev. C. A. Portz will speak.

The service at St. Paul's Lutheran church will start at 11 p. m. The entire church will be lighted by candles and worshippers will participate in the candlelight service. There will be special music by the senior and youth choirs and organ. Rev. Herman L. Gilbert will preside.

Caroling by the Luther Leaguers will precede the annual Christmas eve supper for those who go out to sing to the sick and shut-ins of St. Matthew's Lutheran church. Later Luther League members will join in the candlelight service at 10:45 p. m. when a choir of 25 voices will

TERMINAL PAY REQUESTS LAG

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The army and navy issued a loud "come and get it" today to the millions of veterans failing to claim their share of the two billion 700 million dollar terminal leave payments.

Both services advised claimants that unless they get a move on last minute rushes will cause considerable delays in payment.

The navy echoed complaints by the war department that only half of veterans eligible for payments have made pre-Christmas applications for money due them.

Commodore William R. Ryan, fiscal director of the navy's bureau of supplies and accounts, announced that less than one million 750 thousand of the three and a half million claims for terminal leave benefits have been received by the disbursing office at Great Lakes, Ill.

An army spokesman noted that only about five million of the estimated eleven million army eligibles had submitted applications. He asserted:

"Army, paying offices are geared for early completion of payments. Veterans who wait until the last minute to file their claims will contribute to the formation of a flood of applications which will overload facilities and result in considerable delay to the applicant."

2,000 DEATH TOLL SEEN BY JAP AGENCY

Refugee-Cluttered Highways Hamper Movements of Rescue Teams.

TOKYO — (UP) — Homeless survivors of the Japanese earthquake and tidal wave, estimated unofficially as high as 500,000, were cheered by warmer, sunny weather today as they buried their dead and began clearing the ruins.

U. S. army spokesmen said the situation was "well under control." American reports from Okyama prefecture, where British units are stationed, showed conditions "well in hand for the present with no outside help needed.

Japanese and Allied rescue teams met great difficulties as they struggle to reach the center of the stricken area. Refugees cluttered the roads. Disrupted communications delayed casualty reports and calls for help.

Death toll reports from Shikoku and southern Honshu islands showed wide discrepancies. The latest United Press tabulation, compiled in close collaboration with American, British and Japanese agencies, listed 969 persons known dead, 1,431 injured and 63 missing.

* * *

Predicts High Toll.

Kyodo, Japanese news agency, said the number of killed was "expected to top the 2,000 mark."

This figure doubles Kyodo's own total which was issued a few hours earlier and which previously was the highest of all tabulations. Kyodo admitted that accurate information on the death toll was unavailable but said "all indications point now that the number of fatalities will soar above 2,000."

A supreme headquarters announcement placed the death toll for 15 prefectures at 681, with 575 persons injured and 266 missing. The United Press tabulation listed some areas not included in the army's announcement.

The headquarters report listed 7,420 homes destroyed and 26,469 damaged in the sections ravaged by Japan's second major quake disaster of the century.

Japanese home office officials reported 5,547 buildings demolished beyond repair and 14,000 more less seriously damaged. This source said 2,335 of the destroyed buildings had been washed away by the tidal wave. The waters swept away or wrecked 2,195 ships.

All reports agreed that there were apparently no casualties among American occupation forces.

United Press Correspondent Peter Kalischer, covering the devastated Wakayama area of southern Honshu, reported that Maj. Gen. Charles Mullins and all American 25th division personnel were believed safe.

Kalischer reported that funeral processions lined the roads in the Wakayama area. Bereaved Japanese in mouring kimonos carried their dead in coffins on crude, hastily built platforms. Priests and flower bearers led the processions.

Many Japanese were at work repairing their damaged homes and clearing paths through the littered streets for the processions of mourners.

Fifty aftermath shocks were reported in the Osaka area Sunday, three of which were strong enough to be felt by the human body.

The minor shocks caused a panic at Shinsho Sunday night as terror-stricken men and women stampeded in the dark shouting "Tidal wave." There was no reported damage from the latest shocks.

PORTAL-TO-PORTAL PAY CLAIMS GROW

DETROIT—(INS)—The CIO-United Automobile Workers and the United Steel Workers filed in Detroit's federal court today suits seeking $20,660,000 in portal-to-portal pay.

The suits cover employes of five Detroit companies, including General Motors corporation and the Briggs Manufacturing company.

The international CIO-UAW announced that it will use a single, nation-wide plan in its fight to gain 270 million dollars from the Ford Motor company.

Byrd's Men Face Stormy Yuletide

By LEE VAN ATTA

WITH THE BYRD EXPEDITION EN ROUTE TO THE SOUTH POLE —(INS) — The 4,000 men abroad the antarctic tank force looked forward today to a stormy Christmas as mounting winds and seas indicated a turbulent yuletide afloat.

Increasing frigid blasts from the Pole were interpreted by Admiral Richard Cruzon's weather advisers to mean gale conditions ahead as the ships neared the legendary "screaming sixties."

The entrance of the ships of "operation highjump" into the mid-forty latitudes over the week-end signalized the beginning of almost constantly adverse weather which will continue until the relative sanctuary of the icepack itself is reached about the first week in January.

But angry winds and seas failed to diminish the gay pre-Christmas spirit of the men and officers. Wardrooms and messhalls have blossomed with yuletide decorations. Tall Canadian spruces which were placed in refrigerators at Panama will be brought out later today.

One will be attached to the main mast complete with lighting effects—if the weather permits.

A number of special broadcasts are scheduled to enable the men to communicate with their families at home and navy regulations will be relaxed to enable each man to send two cables conveying yule greetings to friends and relatives.

Christmas dinner will be the highlight of an otherwise lonely holiday observance. The menu will provide for everything from fruit cocktails and lobster casserole to turkey and mince pie.

There will even be a special Christmas eve theater program with all hands taking part in a fantasy depicting the "true" Santa Claus.

With the men contending that St. Nick really came from the South Pole in the first place, he will be dressed in the garb of Emperor Penguin.

Candlelight services and special masses will be held both Christmas eve and morning.

Seaman First Class Tom Donnely, of Bal-Cynnwid, Penn., will act as Emperor Penguin. The overall Christmas preparations are in charge of Chaplain William Menster, of Dubuque, Iowa.

Meanwhile, Admiral Cruzen, operations commander, announced he will transfer his two star flag from the Mount Olympus to the icebreaker northwind about the first of January. He will lead the central expedition into the ice pack from the latter as command ship.

BROWNS CAPTURE ALL-AMERICA CROWN, 14-9

Sports Parade

By OSCAR FRALEY

NEW YORK—(UP)—The Cleveland Browns held the championship of the All-America football conference today—starting a dynasty as the AA's Chicago Bears—and you can trace it all back to Notre Dame even though the works belong to Ohio State.

You'll read all about such football marvels as Otto Graham, Edgar (Special Delivery) Jones, Marion Motley, Mac Speedie and Dante Lavelli winning the title for the Browns. The recorders even will give a bow to Coach Paul Brown.

The laurels rightly should go to owner Arthur McBride, a taxicab tycoon who learned to love football at South Bend, shrine of all you Irish subway alumni members, and decided the necessary items were procurable at Ohio State.

It was McBride who chose Brown as coach because he knew that the former Ohio State coach was a shrewd teacher of the block and tackle. And it was Horatio Arthur who knew that Brown would draw the Ohio youngsters who would make good Cleveland box office, good football and a title. Proof of the pudding is that the Browns have 17 Ohio boys on their squad and seven Ohio Staters.

Don't miss the fact, either, that they're all young players and they will be around a long time in the manner of those old but still vaunted Bears. The same Bears, incidentally, who won the national football league title this year.

But the brain in back of the Browns' first title—and you can rest assured, not their last—is McBride.

This was a guy who loved boxing and baseball. Football, to him, was a game over on the other side of the tracks. But came 1940 and a son, Arthur, Jr., enrolled at Notre Dame and it wasn't long before you could find McBride wherever the Irish played, be it Los Angeles, New York or New Orleans.

The NFL had the Rams in Cleveland at that time and McBride made an attempt to purchase them. It fell through, but not because McBride didn't have the capital.

Sure, he started as a Chicago newsboy at the age of six. But 17 years later, Arthur was banking a neat $10,000 a year as a newspaper circulation executive. The reason was that he evidenced business acumen as a youngster—and hasn't lost any of it since.

As a boy, newspapers at his stand sold at a cent each. McBride's stand was at a popular intersection. Regular customers gave him the free transfers they received on the street car to his corner and in return he gave them a free paper. Then he sold the free transfers for three cents to people who otherwise would have had to pay five cents fare.

You wonder the guy has money! In 1913, he moved to Cleveland as a newspaper circulation manager and subsequently went into business for himself. Now he has real estate holdings in Cleveland, Chicago, Miami and Coral Gables and is taxi-cab boss of Cleveland, Akron and Canton, O., along with numbers other money maneuvers.

"If I only have a peanut stand, it has to be better than the one across the street," McBride explained when he hired Brown. "So I hired the man who, to my mind, is the best in the business to make my Browns the champion."

Just like that. And he got it, too. So, sure, give Brown, Graham, Jones, Motley, Speedie and Lavelli their honors. But don't forget a little applause for a guy named McBride who got the yen at Notre Dame and the wherewithal at Ohio State.

GRAHAM HURLS AERIAL THAT BEATS YANKS

Cleveland Comes From Behind Twice To Win.

By DICK DUGAN

CLEVELAND—(UP)—Cleveland boasted its second major-league football championship in two years today after the Browns' 14 to 9 conquest of the New York Yankees, but even the most rabid Cleveland fan admitted a wish that December playoffs could be accomplished in August weather.

The Browns, Western division All America conference titlist, came from behind twice to nip the Yankees, eastern champs, and win the first AAC grand championship. Cleveland won 12 of its 14 regular-season games, and found yesterday's 13th triumph no jinx, albeit anything but easy.

Temperatures stood at 29 degrees, three degrees below freezing, and it seemede much colder as snow blew in from Lake Erie on a steady, sharp wind. The challenging weather held the crowd to 40,000, although the Browns drew as much as 71,00 for games in balmier breezes. Last year, the Rams won the National League championship in a game played in zero weather against Washington.

The chill wind didn't cool Otto Graham's passing hand, and that carried Cleveland to victory with some aid by Marion Motley, a giant fullback with tremendous power.

New York's strong line stopped the Browns for most of the first half, and the Yankees took the lead after Ed Prokop intercepted a Graham pass in the first quarter and ran it to the Browns' 34-yard-line. Ace Parker, playing what he said would be his last football game, passed to the 19 and running plays moved the ball to the 11. Haney Johnson kicked a field goal.

Late in the second quarter Graham found the range. Alternating passes to Dante Lavelli and Mac Speedie, Graham moved the ball to the Yank 13 and Motley plunged across in two carries. Lou Groza converted.

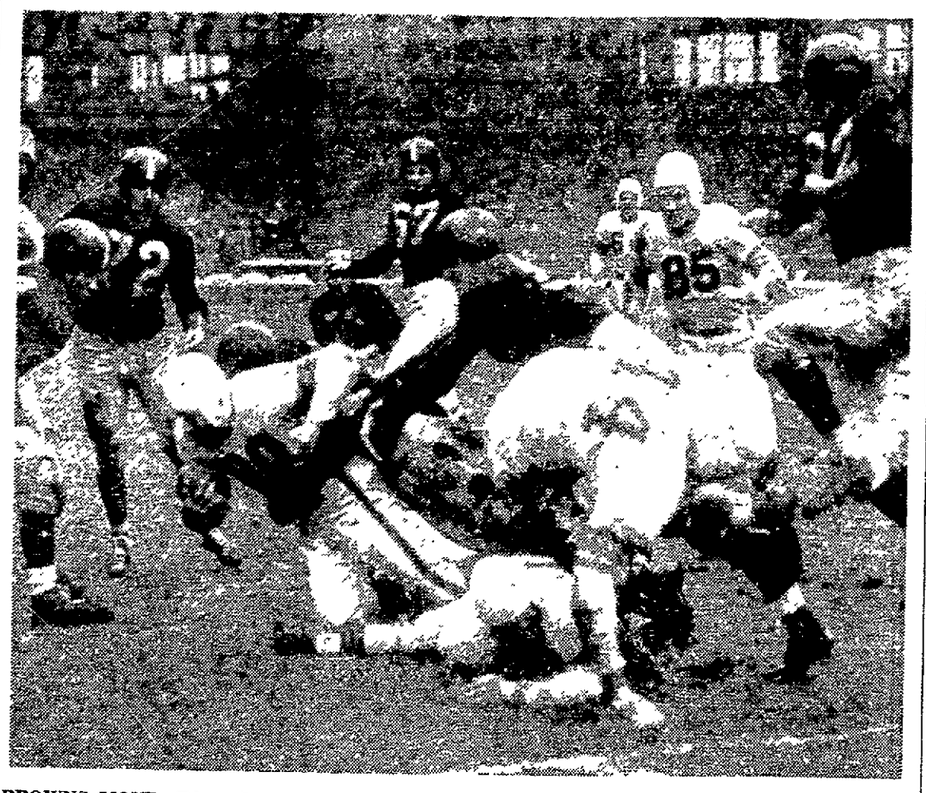
New York, which had been angered at pregame odds which set the Browns up as 14-point favorites, came back in the third quarter and scored on an 80-yard drive after Groza missed a field goal attempt. Spec Sanders, Yankee running ace, drove across from the two-yard line.

For the first 10 minutes of the last quarter it looked like the Yanks would avenge two regular-season losses to the Browns. Again the Yank line stopped the Cleveland running, and alert pass defense batted down Graham's tosses.

Then Cleveland hit the championship stride. Fancy T-formation plays made yardage and the Yank defense moved in. Then Graham began sharpshooting. What probably was the turning point was a great catch by Edgar Jones, who pulled a bullet pass up from his shoe-tops on the Yank 42. Three passes to Lavelli scored the touchdown. The last pass covered 16 yards and Lavelli took it on the goal-line. Groza converted.

After the game, the Browns explained their disperate determination to win.

"Most of us had spent our championship bonuses already on new cars and other things," said Capt. Lou Saban.



BROWNS MOVE—Edgar Jones (90), Cleveland Browns halfback, plunges off right tackle for first period three-yard gain against New York Yankees in All-America conference championship game, at Cleveland Stadium yesterday. Play brought ball to the New York four-yard line but Browns failed to score. Yankees: Ed Prokop (72), Perry Schwartz (57). Browns: Lou Rymkus (44), and Don Greenwood (85). (AP Wirephoto.)

Musial All But Makes Sweep Of NL 1946 Batting Laurels

NEW YORK—(AP)—Stan Musial, brilliant outfielder and first baseman of the world champion St. Louis Cardinals, all but made a clean sweep of the National league's batting honors in 1946, according to the official averages.

In capturing the senior loop's batting crown for the second time in his four-year major league career, the 26-year-old clouter from Donora, Pa., compiled a percentage of .365, went to bat the most times, 624; scored the most runs, 124; collected the most hits, 228; amassed the most total bases, 366; gathered the most singles, 142; the most doubles, 50, and the most triples, 20.

Only in the matter of home runs was Musial surpassed by a rival Circuit hitting honors went to Ralph Kiner of Pittsburgh, who led the loop with 23 home runs. This gave Kiner the distinction of becoming only the second National league player since 1900 to lead the circuit in home runs in his first year in the majors.. Harry Lumley, of the 1904 Brooklyn Dodgers, was the other with nine.

Pete Reiser, fleet Dodger outfielder, stole the most bases, 34, including seven successful thefts of home in nine attempts. His teammate, Ed Stanky, had the most sacrifice hits, 20.

Three players tied for the season's longest hitting streak, 16. They were Brooklyn's Dixie Walker, Pittsburgh's Frankie Gustine and Del Ennis of the Philadelphia Phils. Grady Hatton, Max West and Ray Mueller of the Cincinnati Reds tied a major league record by hitting three successive home runs in one inning on Aug 11 off Murry Dickson of the Cards.

Although Mel Ott appeared only infrequently in the lineup, the New York Giants manager increased a number of his own records. He played in his 21st season with the same club; boosted his run scoring mark to 1,859, his total bases to 5,041, his extra bases to 2,165, his long hits to 1,071 and by hitting one home run brought his National league lifetime record to 511.

Team batting laurels went to the Cards with a .265 mark, one point better than the Boston Braves' .264. The Redbirds also scored the most runs, 712; made the most hits, 1,426; the most total bases, 2,046, and the most doubles, 265.

The Dodgers gathered the most triples, 66, and the Giants the most home runs, 121. It was the 21st time the Polo grounders topped the league in homers and the 15th year in which they hit 100 or more, both league records.

The Reds and Dodgers engaged in the longest scoreless game in major league history when they battled 19 innings to a 0-0 tie on Sept. 11 in Brooklyn.

Cleveland Barons Start Another Winning Streak

Cleveland's sizzling Barons, their consecutive win streak stopped at nine, started another today and finally pulled into a tie for the coveted top spot in the American Hockey league.

Only One NOL School To See Court Action

SHELBY—Only one Northern Ohio league school faces court action this week as the eight schools in the loop enjoy the annual two-week Christmas vacation.

Bucyrus entertains the Fostoria Redmen in the lone encounter.

The other league quintets including Coach Charles Williams' first place Whippets will be idle.

Leading a league for the first time since the Whippets won the title 15 years ago, the Scarlet and Grey will resume its cage schedule Jan. 3 at Ashland in a non-league tilt.

Norwalk, defending champion and favorite to annex the league title again this winter, will entertain Bellevue on Jan. 3 in the only official league game scheduled during the holiday.

The Whippets are undefeated in two league games, defeating Bucyrus, 32 to 22, and Upper Sandusky, 29 to 23. Norwalk successfully opened its defense of its crown by walloping Crestline, 56 to 35, to open the league season.

Other non-league games over the two-week holiday period take Upper Sandusky to Marysville on Jan. 1, Bucyrus to Upper Sandusky, Galion to Crestline and Mansfield Madison to Willard on Jan. 3.

Hoop Tossers Ease Off For Yuletide Holidays

By DON STULL

The Ohio college basketball program spreads thin but wide this week as the tossers ease off for the yuletide holidays.

Only 13 games are on the week's schedule, but Buckeye bucketeers will be in action at both ends of the nation.

Ohio State carries Buckeye hopes the farthest, playing a short series on the west coast, while Baldwin Wallace journeys to the eastern seaboard for a Friday game with Seton Hall at East Orange, N. J.

The Bucks play the second of a two-game series with the University of Washington at Seattle tonight (Monday) and meet California at Berkeley Friday and Saturday before heading home.

In opening its western invasion Saturday, Ohio State fell victim to a closing spurt by the Washington Huskies and lost, 49 to 45, in a close tilt that saw the Bucks repeatedly come from behind to knot the score three times and take the lead on four occasions themselves. The Ohioans grabbed a measure of glory out of their first defeat in two starts, however, as their Freshman forward, Jim Harris, an all-Ohio scholastic performer from East Liverpool, grabbed scoring honors with six fielders and three free throws.

Other Ohio college quintets found the going rough in the east the past week, too, dropping nine games ot easterners while amassing only six victories.

The biggest blow was suffered by the high-flying Bowling Green State Falcons, who wound up an 11-game winning streak and suffered their first two defeats of the season on a short eastern tour.

The Bee-Gees lost first to City College of New York, 52-45, and dropped a thrilling overtime verdict, 72-70, to Syracuse Saturday. Both C.C.N. Y. and Syracuse are undefeated this season.

Another undefeated eastern five, Seton Hall, thumped Wittenberg, 71 to 50, for the Ohioan's fourth loss against three victories in an 1,800-mile barnstorming tour through the east. It was the eighth in a row for Seton Hall. Wittenberg gets a chance to even the count on the long road trip tonight, however, tangling with Waynesburg in Pennsylvania en route back home.

Ohio Wesleyan suffered its first two losses in four starts too, both reverses coming on an eastern journey. Wesleyan's Bishops bowed 74-71 before unbeaten Syracuse and lost 86 to 59 to Courtland State Teachers in New York.

Corneliuc McGillicuddy Celebrates Birthday

By ED WERKMAN

HOLLYWOOD—(UP)—Tall and poker-faced Cornelius McGillicuddy, better known as Connie Mack, celebrated his 84th birthday today by planning, with all the enthusiasm of a rookie, his 63rd year in organized baseball.

The one great desire of the president of the Philadelphia Athletics is to give fans of the Quaker City a good ball club next year. Mack ruefully admitted his athletics have finished in last place too often since the club won its ninth American league pennant in 1931.

"We can't help but do better than the past season when we finished 20 games behind the seventh place club," Mack chuckled. "The American league is a strong circuit and other teams picked on us."

From the 35 players expected to report to the Athletics training camp at West Palm Beach, Fla., next February, Mack hopes to field a team that will be considerably removed from the league cellar. His pitching, he believes, should improve, and new talent, including first sacker Ferris Fain, drafted from the San Francisco Seals, should give the 1947 team the needed punch.

"The game of baseball has improved tremendously since I had my first baseball job as a catcher with Meriden, Conn., in 1884," Mack recalled. "And I think there will be better baseball this coming year as the ex-servicemen get back into stride."

Baseball has become a highly competitive game, Mack said, adding that in the old days, he could go out on his own and pick up a good player and develop him. But now there usually are several clubs bidding for the same player.

With no thought of slowing down, the gray-haired Mack rushes around, taking long, loping strides. He wishes traveling with the Athletics during the season despite his age. Since 1901, he has managed the Philadelphia team, with his sons, Roy and Earle, sharing the burden in recent years.

"I think the game is being run on a high plane and I don't believe we have any special problems right now. I love the game as much today as I did when I was a player before joining the Athletics," Mack said.

"Baseball has been good to me and I intend to be active in it to the very last. My health couldn't be better. While wintering here, I've taken long walks every day.

"I realize, of course, that my time is running out. When you get my age, most anything can happen."

Court's Routine Pay Decision Flares Into Limelight

By HOWARD W. WARD

WASHINGTON —(AP)— American industry and labor unions are beginning now to feel the full weight of a routine decision of the supreme court last June involving 1,200 employes of the Mt. Clemens, Mich., Pottery company

Before it has run its course, the bonanza created by that 6 to 2 decision, with Justices Burton and Frankfurter dissenting and Jackson not participating, may drop $6,000,000,000 into the lap of surprised workers — but it could conceivably wipe out corporations.

The amount involved throughout the nation is a "wild guess" in the opinion of government officials, while industry says that any figure is a blind estimate.

The court found that the Mt Clemens workers were entitled under the Fair Labor Standards Act to back pay for the time it took them to go from the time clock to their work benches, don aprons and prepare for work The same was true in reverse at the end of the day That meant the company was liable for compensation for this time back to 1938 when the Fair Labor Standards Act was adopted. The act established the present 40-hour week and the 40-cents hourly wage minimum.

* * *

WHILE THE DECISION REsulted in no immediate public impact the protests of business were loud on Capitol Hill and congress came within an ace of passing a bill which would have eased the liability for most employers.

Both branches of congress had agreed to limit this liability to two years—or three at the most —but the proposal never came to a final vote in the confused closing hours of the 79th congress.

As a result big corporations are being sued by unions for hundreds of millions of dollars in behalf of employes who have been walking to work a few hundred yards or more daily inside company property.

John L Lewis started it all He won portal-to-portal pay for his miners in 1943, and this underground travel time was upheld by the supreme court in the now famous Jewell Ridge Coal company case. Justice Jackson revealed that the recent personal flare-up in the supreme court dated back to that case

The Mt Clemens Pottery case brought the issue down to the level of every worker, however The miners' position was acknowledged to be somewhat different from surface workers.

This is why the problem exists: The Fair Labor Standards Act said that after 1940 the work week should be 40 hours in interstate commerce, and that employers were liable for payment of time and one-half for time worked beyond that Therefore a supreme court decision on what constitutes "working time" is important.

* * *

SUDDENLY IT IS DETERmined that for years a group of workers has been working more than 40 hours a week, because, under the supreme court interpretation, they have been walking some distance to their jobs after entering company property or have been taking minutes daily to prepare for work—thus have been "working"

The employer is liable for this time, and since he hasn't been paying it, the worker has it coming to him at overtime rates and DOUBLED because the worker had to go to court to collect it.

For example, if it is determined that five hours per week has been spent traveling and preparing for work on company property, and the worker has been paid for the 40 hours at his job, he has an extra seven and one-half hours pay due him Therefore if his pay rate was $1 per hour under the law he would have $15 due him for every week this occurred back to 1938, or back as far as the statute of limitations made the employer liable in a given state.

Lewis' District 50—the catch-all union for any group of workers who want to get under the mine workers' wing—were among the first to take real advantage of this. The Lewis' union sued DuPont and big match and chemical firms for huge sums last summer

Now the CIO steelworkers and auto workers are bringing suits for hundreds of millions of dollars Soon the electrical workers, other members of the CIO "Big Three" about to negotiate with giant mass production industry, will follow

How much of this is bargaining and how much will be pressed is up to the individual union, says CIO President Philip Murray.

* * *

THE AFL HASN'T YET GOTten serious about it, but some of its officials indicate that organization is drooling at the prospect.

What worries the Chamber of Commerce of the United States and the National Association of Manufacturers, however, is that even where settlements are reached with unions across the bargaining table to cover this liability, it does not necessarily relieve the company of vulnerability in court from suit by one or more individual employes for the amount specifically by these workers

Part of the answer may be legislation. A bill to limit the statutory liability will be one of the first pieces of legislation dropped in the hopper when the 80th congress convenes January 3.

The government has not yet made up its mind what position to take on this problem

The labor department reported a three-year limitation in the dying days of the last session. Management proposed that the liability be cut to one year—instead of extending back to 1938—but the bill, sponsored by Rep. Gwynne (R., Iowa) compromised on two years This measure was lost in the haste of members to get home last July

Bedtime Stories

—By Thornton W. Burgess

Downy the Woodpecker loves the Old Orchard, the borders of the Green Forest, the big trees along the highways. He is a lover of trees. You seldom see him anywhere but on a tree, or flying from one to another. He makes his home in a tree and he gets most of his food in trees. So when Peter Rabbit first saw him over in the Old Pasture where there were no big trees Peter was not sure that his eyes were not playing him tricks.

"He has no business over here in the Old Pasture," thought Peter, quite ignoring the fact that he had no business there himself, but should have been at home in the dear Old Briar-patch.

It was a cold, wintry day with everything covered with snow, a lovely white world that for some was also a cruel white world, for loveliness and suffering often go together. The brown stalks of tall weeds stood above the white surface and it was among these tall weeds that Peter saw the little bird dressed in black and white.

Peter sat up very straight and looked very hard. "It has to be Downy. It simply has to be. What under the sun brings him over here so early in the morning and so far from big trees?" said he.

Of course the quickest way to get information is to ask questions. Anyway, that is what Peter thinks. Probably he is right. Kicking up his long heels he was off, lipperty, lipperty, lip, to use his never bashful tongue. The brown stalks were of last summer's goldenrod. There were many of them, for in late summer that part of the Old Pasture looked as if covered with a cloth of gold. Peter got a good look at the small person flying about among the stalks and caught a glimpse of a spot of red on the back of the head.

"Now I know it is Downy!" cried Peter, and made his jumps a little longer.

He was right. It was Downy the Woodpecker. He was flying from one to another of those tall brown stalks. Peter caught up with him as he stopped on a particularly large stalk.

"Hi, Downy! What are you doing over here in the Old Pasture?" cried Peter.

"I'm getting my breakfast if you must know," replied Downy. He flew to another stalk a short distance away.

Peter scampered after him. "You've come to a poor place. There are no trees over here, so, of course, there is no food for Woodpeckers," said Peter.

"Who says so?" mumbled Downy, very busy about something, just what Peter couldn't see.

"Why—why you folks get your food in trees. Everybody knows that," replied Peter lamely.

"Everybody may know a lot, but not everything. I'm breakfasting very well right here, very well indeed," retorted the small Woodpecker, and began hammering at the stalk to which he was clinging. Then he put his head back and swallowed something.

"That dry stalk doesn't look like good eating to me," said Peter.

"Nor to me," replied Downy, and flew to another where again he hammered with his bill, then appeared to swallow something.

Before Peter could catch up with him Downy had taken wings. He passed a number of stalks before stopping again. Peter followed and now for the first time he noticed that some of the stalks had round swellings on them. It was at one of these that Downy was at work.

"Is the inside of that good to eat?" asked Peter.

"Not the inside of the stalk, but something else that is in there is good," said Downy. He worked at that round swelling a moment, then pulled out a white grub and ate it with relish.

Peter's eyes opened wide. "How did you know that that was in there?" he cried.

"There is always one on one of these round swellings unless some one has been ahead of me," replied Downy, and flew to another.

What neither Downy nor Peter knew was that these swellings on goldenrod stalks are called galls, and are caused by the growth of the grubs hatched from eggs laid in the growing stems of the goldenrod by little flies called Gall Flies.

BIG CHRISTMAS FEAST—Six thousand pounds of turkey were ready for ovens in the homes of approximately 500 employes of the Barnes Manufacturing company today. The turkeys, together with Christmas bonuses, were distributed at an employe party in the plant Monday afternoon. In addition to the turkeys, employes received about $15,000 in cash on the basis of $25 for those with more than six months of service, and $10 for those with less. Barnes' Christmas distribution was small, however, compared to the profit-sharing distribution that comes in July after the end of the fiscal year. At that time, M. H. Pryor, president of the company, informed the employes the regular profit-sharing distribution will give to the employes 25 per cent of the profits for the year, before deduction of taxes. Mr. Pryor (left) and Fred Hout, vice president in charge of sales (right), are shown here giving turkeys to employes (left to right), Zanta Teeter, Marilyn Skeese, Virginia Lersch and Terese Hallabrin.—(News-Journal staff photo)

Costumer Finds Santa's '46 Whiskers Short on Quality

It's a bad year for Santa's whiskers!

The old gent's hirsute adornment isn't what it used to be, says Mrs. Nora Mink, 163 Hedges street, who has carried on a costume business her mother, Mrs. W. H. Henry started at least 36 years ago.

"The whiskers we used to get could always be washed," she explained. "But the kind I bought this year are of poorer stuff."

Mrs. Mink yearly keeps 18 Santa costumes in good condition and his whiskers up to par.

Those 18 suits each has been rented at least four or five times to Mansfield men who play Old Saint Nick for little children.

* * *

AMUSING INCIDENT TO

Mrs. Mink during the 36 years she has been connected with the family's costume business was when she won the prize as the best dressed Turkish gentleman "in one of Fred Hunt's Halloween celebrations years ago. She had thought she was starting out with the kind of an outfit that a well-dressed Turkish wife would wear but because of the baggy trousers and headdress was proclaimed a "gentleman" and won $5.

"Mother began the business with five suits," Mrs. Mink recalls." Those five suits were her own. Mother loved to dress for masquerades and every time there'd be such a party, she would buy the material and have a new costume made. Finally, friends wanted to borrow them and then others. So she decided she'd better go into the business."

Wardrobes of costumes are filled with several hundred outfits, ranging from clowns to tuxedoes and uniforms.

JUDGE SEES SUITS AS 'PAY HYSTERIA'

DETROIT—(INS)—Federal Judge Frank A. Picard who returned the decision in the Mt. Clemens pottery case asserted today that his ruling does not justify the current "hysteria" over portal-to-portal pay.

The judge issued his statement as the UAW-CIO prepared to file a suit for 234 million dollars against the Ford Motor company. The Ford claim will bring the UAW suits near the four hundred million dollar mark.

The UAW-CIO filed suits in Detroit yesterday for 18 million dollars against Briggs Manufacturing company and two million dollars against the Chevrolet division of General Motors corporation of Flint.

RECORD BUYING SPREE NEAR END

There's no denying it—Mansfield is out to celebrate its biggest Christmas in years.

As a record shopping spree ends today, homes throughout the city will be jam-packed with anything and everything that even resembles a Christmas present.

Thousands tonight will be preparing for the celebration by attending church services, trimming trees or plucking turkeys. Hundreds of others will be jamming trains and buses to spend "Christmas at home."

Virtually every plant, office and business in the city will be shut up tight tomorrow. Anything worth doing will have the "Christmas" tag on it.

Railroads report a normal Christmas rush to travel but a sharp upswing in the number of people traveling long distances.

"Seems as if everybody is going home this Christmas," one railroader said. "Pullmans are selling fast."

Bus officials prepared for a record movement on Christmas eve.

In the rush of activities, however, Mansfielders aren't forgetting what the holiday is all about.

Accident Victim Reported 'Fair'

The condition of Frank L. McMullen, seriously injured in an explosion early yesterday in the Westinghouse tool room, was reported as "fair" today at Mansfield General hospital.

McMullen suffered a broken left arm, broken nose, leg burns and lacerations of the head when a paint drum exploded. He was reported attempting to open the drum with a blow torch..

3 CONTENDERS SEEK GEORGIA GOVERNORSHIP

ATLANTA, Ga. —(INS)— Opinion as to whom should serve as Georgia's governor the next four years was in sharp dispute today among the state's political and legal experts.

Supporters of three separate contenders for the governor's chair, left vacant for the 1947-50 term by the death of Governor-Elect Eugene Talmadge, continued to map strategy for an unprecedented court and political battle.

Those claiming that Lieut. Gov.-Elect M. E. Thompson should be the next chief executive appeared to be gaining some strength. Four members of the group which redrafted the state's new constitution came out favoring Thompson.

Two others went into the camp of Gov. Ellis Arnall, asserting that the youthful chief executive should serve in his present office until the state has another general election two years hence.

Another stated that in his opinion the general assembly should name the governor when it convenes next month, while another said it was his opinion that the courts should decide the matter.

No provisions for such a situation as that created by the death of Governor-Elect Eugene Talmadge was made when the commission redrafted the constitution.

In many churches, children presented Christmas programs and pageants, and choirs joined with congregations in singing the familiar hymns and chants

Vespers in the afternoon and additional children's programs in the evening, rounded out a full day of Christmas worship of unusually joyful and reverent recognition of the nativity.

STARLINGS TAKE OVER

POUGHKEEPSIE, N. Y.—(INS)— An army of several thousand starlings has taken over the city of Poughkeepsie. City officials and police admit they are stumped on how to get rid of the unruly invaders. Despite all attempts to drive out the marauders, they have moved in and settled down.

Short Beers Legal, Judge Tells Shorty

CHICAGO — (INS) — A Chicago midget had proved today the inalienable right of a man of his stature to drink beers, short beers, that is.

Lester Landrus, 45, was charged with driving an automobile while intoxicated. Landrus, 4 feet 10 inches, was accompanied to court by his wife.

Judge Michael Tremko, after hearing the story, ruled:

"I guess a short man is entitled to a few short beers.

"We'll change the charge to reckless driving and I'll fine you $10 and no costs."

Landrus produced a hatful of coins, collected by buddies at the tavern where he drinks his short beers, paid off the fine and had $30 left over.

HIGH SCHOOLERS HELP NEEDY—Forty-one unfortunate Mansfield families today are happier for the 72 baskets of Christmas cheer delivered to them by Senior high school's student "Christmas basket committee", shown above, Friday afternoon. Containing mostly food staples, the baskets contained just enough "goodies" to carry the holiday message the students annually deliver to needy families. All the families were those with children in the public schools. Shown here packing the baskets just before delivery are (left to right): Kneeling, Harold Leiendecker, Martha Shiplet, Barbara Bailey, Miss Ruth Dunham, faculty sponsor, Nancy Osbun, Dorla Wagner, and James Stevenson. PORTSMOUTH— (AP)—Charles Weber, 72, well-known shoe merchant here, died yesterday.

NATHAN SEES LABOR GAINS

WASHINGTON —(AP) —Economist Robert Nathan has predicted that industry will grant a new round of pay boosts next spring without increasing prices and that strikes will be avoided.

The 38-year-old former government war production planner conceded in an interview that many will disagree with him—as many have disputed his contention that industry can afor to give workers a 25 per cent wage increase.

"This may be wishful thinking but I feel sincerely that we will see peaceful settlements with workers getting an increase," Nathan said. "I know that many people will differ with this opinion.

"On the whole I think industry does realize there is a need for raising wages and that it has the capacity to give something. On the other hand labor won't be inclined to disregard any reasonable offer.

"The whole environment of the situation looks good to me. And I think the present discussion we are having about wages and profits is healthy and will contribute toward reaching a solution without having strikes."

Nathan said he believes both labor and industry want to maintain production without interruption.

DEVICE EXPLODES

PITTSBURGH —(AP)— What looked like a little copper tube with wires attached when 14-year old Ronald Berich hung it on his Christmas tree turned out to be a detonator which exploded, critically injuring the youth. The boy's father, Clarence, said the device had been about the house for years and that no one knew what it was.

Try and Stop Me

—By Bennett Cerf

A man who owned a house in the east sixties decided he was tired of it and asked "Cannonball" Gans, the famous realtor to sell it for him. This was in the days when you had to do more than sweep the front porch to sell a house.

The following Sunday he read the "ad" Gans had worked up on the house in the real estate section of the newspaper. Then he read it again. Then he called up Gans.

"Cannonball," he said. "I've decided not to sell. That ad of yours convinced me that this is the kind of house I've been looking for all my life."

Barclay on Bridge

ONE GOOD question to ask yourself before making an informative double for a takeout is "Would you like it if your partner made a business or penalty pass?" If the answer is negative, then it is wise to look for some other action than a double. If your hand is strong enough, you may find it advisable to cue-bid the opponent's suit. Or, if it is a two-suiter, you usually should prefer bidding one of your suits, with a call of one higher than minimum if your suits are good enough.

	♠ 10 8 7 ♥ J 10 8 4 ♦ 9 7 4 ♣ K 3 2
♠ K Q J 9 5 3 ♥ None ♦ A Q 10 6 2 ♣ Q 10	N W E S	♠ 6 4 2 ♥ K 9 6 5 2 ♦ J ♣ A J 9 4
	♠ A ♥ A Q 7 3 ♦ K 8 5 3 ♣ 8 7 6 5

(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1 ♥	Dbl	Pass	Pass
2. 1 ♥	1 ♠	Pass	1 NT
Pass	3 ♦	Pass	3 NT
Pass	4 ♦	Pass	4 ♠
Pass	5 ♥	Pass	6 ♣
Pass	6 ♠

In the first sequence you find West doubling when he had both of the good reasons for not doing so. One reason was that he had a two-suiter, making it desirable to show one suit first so that, if the opponents then jumped their suit to a high point, he could complete his own story by bidding his second suit. The other reason was that he would not be pleased if his partner made a business pass of the double, exactly what East did. After South passed that, he got set only two tricks, scoring two high trumps and a ruff plus the spade A in his own hand and a ruff in dummy.

That double produced only 500 points for West's side. The sounder action at the other table produced a score of 980 when the spade small slam was made, with the loss of only a single trump trick.

West at Table 2 soundly preferred to show one of his suits, at the minimum range because he did not consider himself quite strong enough for 2-Spades. But after East was able to keep it open, he was ready for a jump and later on the cue-bids of minor aces made the slam sound like a worthwhile venture, which it proved to be.

Honesty Brings Happy Christmas

NEW YORK —(AP)— John Serrani, $35-a-week clerk, hurried out of police headquarters today to tell his wife Margaret to plan something a little extra for their two children's Christmas.

In his pocket was a check for $1,000—a reward from Miss Mary Schieffelin for return of a case containing, Miss Schieffelin said, jewels valued at "more than $10,000." Serrani found the case in a taxicab.

AN INDEPENDENT NEWSPAPER

Yes, yes, Virginia, there IS a Santa Claus—even if some of his imitators are not particularly impressive.

One thought-compelling safety warning reads: "Drive carefully—don't make this your LAST Christmas."

Bilbo calls the gift of an expensive automobile "just an old southern custom"—but the custom is not entirely sectional . . . when favors are being sought.

Prosperity That Is Fairly Shared

NOW THAT the small village of Scio, Harrison county, with its 1,400 population, has been brought into national prominence by publication of the story of how L. P. Reese made a rise from "rags to riches" in a dozen years, it seems timely to direct thought to circumstances associated with development of the business which Mr. Reese heads.

Of outstanding public interest, of course, is the pre-Christmas distribution of $705,000 in cash bonuses to the 827 employes of the pottery company which Mr. Reese rejuvenated in 1932 after it had failed during the depression.

Take note of this, however, for it is highly important. When Mr. Reese arrived in Scio fourteen years ago, at the age of 39, he was penniless—and for a time was "on relief." Now he owns a plant valued at several million dollars, pays exceptionally high wages, operates on a non-union basis, and says to his employes: "My road has not been an easy one, but no man could ask for one more pleasant. Many people would like to possess great riches or live a life of ease, but I would not trade your companionship or friendship for anything in the world."

Those few words appear as an ideal of employer-employe relationship, with recognition of a mutuality of interest which is too frequently lacking in the field of industrial operations.

Noteworthy also is that the profit-sharing practice of Mr. Reese was carried consistently through the years of his progress—first "sharing" having been no more than a 39-cent box of candy to each employe who was "going along" with the hard-pressed management in efforts to establish the business.

Most impressive, perhaps, in the whole story, is that a wage pattern cannot be established for an entire large industry—such as motors, steel, electrical, pottery, mines, etc.—some units may be making sufficient profits to justify substantial wage increases, others may be doing no more than "breaking even," others may be losing money.

Wages and other operating costs must be adapted to each situation if success is to be attained in any business—big or little—and the extent to which this is becoming recognized by management and production workers alike presents a more hopeful picture than the one that is darkened by excessive wage demands, threats, slowdowns, and strikes, such as have marred the 1946 record.

The Scio incident also serves to emphasize the advantage of localized handling of labor relations, rather than that these be on a nation-wide basis, with strike action enforced on some one city—Mansfield, for instance—because of decisions of national union leaders, as was the case in the long and costly steel and electrical workers' strikes which caused hardship to many thousands of employes who would have preferred to continue at work.

Edwin D. Baxter, Pioneer Industrialist

THE DEATH of Edwin D. Baxter marks the passing from the Mansfield scene of a family name that has been familiar in local industrial, civic, social and church circles for almost seventy years.

It was in 1878 that "the Baxter boys" were attracted to Mansfield as a desirable location for the stove manufacturing business in which all had been trained by their father.

At the start, and for many years thereafter, there were the five well-known brothers—J. L., E. C., E. D., C. C., and B. A.—all young and enterprising young men who became well established in Mansfield's early industrial activities, and the interlinking of relationship carries through to many of Mansfield's present-day families.

Now it is only "B. A.", or "Berry," as he was well known to friends, who remains of the five brothers, and his home has been in California for the more than twenty years since his retirement from the company which he and his brothers founded.

It is well that those of the younger generation, and newcomers to Mansfield, learn about the men who pioneered in earlier days to make this the enterprising, prosperous and progressive city it now is, and the name, "Baxter," stands high in the list of those to be favorably remembered.

Speaking of the Weather, Mostly

THE NEWS STORY said that the weather bureau hasn't had much luck with its forecasting so far this year. And our hearts go out to the weatherman—a little. He not only has to worry about coal, weather-stripping, and auto winterizing just like the rest of us but he even has to try to tell other people when to do their worrying and then take their jibes when his forecasts fail.

Now the weatherman has charts. He has maps. He has advance information on such things as cold fronts and low pressure areas. He has all the equipment to make a good guess (and usually he does) but sometimes the weather acts just like the stock market. It doesn't do what the experts expect it to.

A "deep freeze" turns out to be just a "warm dip."

Of course, when the weatherman is guessing right everyone forgets all about him. They read his forecasts and take for granted they'll continue to be correct. But just let him slip. He makes the front page.

This is not written in real defense of the weatherman. With all that advance data, he ought to know exactly when to put the chains on his car. This is written in defense of the weather! It's the one thing that can be counted on to provide surprises and a general topic of conversation.

Pity the residents of those equable climes where the days are always warm and sunny and the evenings cool. What on earth can they discuss with a stranger! And there's really no future there for little boys who want to grow up to be weathermen. It would be just a namby-pamby job. You've got to get into this part of the country before you find a weatherman who has a he-man task.

According to one large manufacturer of motor cars, "if all wheels had been left off of his 1946 car output a profit still would have been impossible"—but how about omitting the motor also?

Veterans' Letters Tell of Pitiful Conditions Due to Lack of Homes

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—The hundreds of letters sent every day to the White House do not, of course, reach the president. Except for letters from actual friends or very important people, he never sees his mail. Letters from others are sorted out and sent to appropriate branches of the government for routine replies.

If, however, President Truman should take time to read some of the letters that pour in to him from veterans on their terrible housing plight, he probably would think twice about his pollyanna statement that all was going to be well in regard to housing.

In fact, if the president read some of the veterans' mail received by this writer, he might come to the conclusion that the White House surrender on housing would be chalked up as his major humanitarian, if not political, mistake.

Whether a political mistake or not, however, the human emotions expressed in some of the housing letters received at this Christmas season are such that I am publishing excerpts from two of them. One is from the chief housing manager of Louisville, Ky., Marshall F. Dumeyer, who writes:

"Unashamed tears come from war heroes. Fear of divorce is routine during interviews. 'Where can I go?' 'What can I do?'

"Serious? Yes. Urgent? Yes. Pitiful? Yes. Yet we could not help most of them because of more serious, more urgent and more pitiful situations. I refer above only to families with children or where a child is expected within a short time. We have placed no childless families or nonexpectant families with the exception of a completely paralyzed veteran and his wife.

"We did reach the vet with two children and an immediately expectant wife who were living in an abandoned contractor's shack, the family of three in a garage, the family who wore overshoes at all times since they could not keep water off the concrete floor of the basement in which they lived, and the vet, wife and infant existing in a one-room planetarium with walls and roof formed entirely by 27 loose-fitting glass windows.

"'I wish I'd stopped a Jap slug on Iwo.' The ex-marine wasn't kidding. His mouth spoke but his heart underlined each word.

"'What can we do?' 'What can we do?' 'Where can we go?' 'Where can we go?' 'What can we do?' These are the questions we are asked over and over again, and we cannot give the answers."

No Room In the Inn.

I reprint the following from D. A. Hoover of Hillsboro, Ill.:

"A soldier and his little wife
Came asking rooms today,
Slowly, she moved, bewildered,
When they were turned away.
Two years ago, that husband,
Charged over bloody fields,
Between our homes and slavery,
His body was a shield.

"Now, spent and battle weary,
He's homeless, and plods his way,
With unborn Child and Mary,
No room, in the inn, today."

Capital Chaff.

Many people thought General Eisenhower was smart when he left for a month's rest just one day before it was known President Truman planned to use troops in the coal mine strike. An earlier chief of staff, General MacArthur, commanded the troops that routed the bonus army in 1932 and has never lived it down; so it was thought the shrewd Eisenhower wasn't going to get caught the same way. However, it now develops that Ike had left written instructions with War department aides well before the coal strike that he planned to be away during the month of December. He has an arthritic shoulder which has bothered him for some months and he wanted time to get it baked out in a sunny climate.

State Department Denial.

Chronological events involving a chronic State department habit:

Sunday, Dec. 15 — This commentator stated that U. S. Ambassador George Messersmith had been ordered to Washington from Argentina for "consultations" which meant a showdown over future U. S. policy toward Dictator Peron.

Monday, Dec. 16—State department career boys pooh-poohed this. Ambassador Messersmith, they admitted, was coming back, but only to see his doctor. His trip had absolutely nothing to do with any discussion of Argentine-U. S. policy.

Wednesday, Dec. 18—Forthright secretary of State Byrnes, back from New York, confirmed the fact that Messersmith had been ordered home for a full-dress review of U. S. policy. His trip, said Byrnes, had nothing to do with his doctor.

Note — When a newspaperman makes a mistake, it's called a chronic lie. When a U. S. diplomat issues a diplomatic denial, it's only a chronic habit.

South American Hitler?

Actually, the showdown with Ambassador Messersmith is much more important than any squabble over State department veracity, or over the personalities of Messersmith and his superior, Assistant Secretary of State Spruille Braden. It goes to the root of whether the United States is to cooperate with the only fascist-minded nation in the Western Hemisphere which has consistently failed to carry out its pledges regarding the Nazis.

Messersmith, who had an excellent record in Europe as the first U. S. diplomat to raise the red flag against Hitler, now has become an apologist for Peron. His confidential cables to the state department surround the Argentine dictator with angelic halos.

Looking Back

TWENTY YEARS AGO TODAY

Thursday, Dec. 23, 1926.

Peak of mailing was passed at Mansfield postoffice, with 90,000 outgoing letters and cards handled preceding day.

Joseph S. Marquis, 93, Civil war veteran, died at his home, 75 West First street.

Children of Friendly House were entertained at Kiwanis club meeting and gifts distributed.

Mr. and Mrs. Russell Jelliff of Cleveland were visiting here while enroute on a trip to Mexico.

Nevin Rickets, student at OSU, was home for the holidays.

Superfuel company was incorporated by Mansfield men, with capital stock on $25,000.

D. L. Miller, former physical director at Y. M. C. A., died in Port Chester, N. Y.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On December 23, 1817, the congress of the United States abolished internal taxes. These were not again levied until 1861, at which time they brought a revenue of $2,678,100.

Dave Boone Says:

CHRISTMAS is almost here and it's the first time we know that it arrived in Mississippi long before it does in the rest of the country.

Innocence is a wonderful thing but it ain't fair for any man to claim so much of it as Senator Bilbo does, if you ask me. I should think the senate investigating committee would ask to see his wings right now if it wasn't afraid he could produce 'em.

* * *

They ought to put that trial off, anyhow, until after the Yuletide season. Reading about a Cadillac on a Christmas tree is pretty depressing to all the folks who have trouble getting Santa to leave some seat covers for the old jalopy.

THE SPIRIT of Christmas is everywhere. . . . Gromyko didn't even veto the atom control plan. . . . He just said he wouldn't have anything to do with it.

In the subway the other day a man accidentally elbowed a woman and said, "Pardon me." She said, "Oh, that's all right" and 200 people tottered out of the car at the next station saying, "How did we get to Philadelphia?"

Anyhow, the cold weather is with us and a scientist says cold weather is better for a man or beast than warm weather. . . . A point which Florida and California will be permitted to challenge.

Timely Editorial

Making a Show of Himself.

For the sake of a great name, some one should restrain Elliott Roosevelt. He is drinking and talking too much. His marital and business difficulties apparently left him flat. He wrote a book, reporting alleged conversations with his distinguished father.

It was perhaps the best piece of Russian propaganda that has come off the printing press. It probably netted Elliott $100,000, and maybe more.

Now he's in Russia, seeking "material" for another book. It wouldn't be difficult to guess what it will contain. In the meantime, he is tarrying here and there to attend a cocktail party, talking his head off and then insisting that some one is trying to "put him in a hole." He should come home and go to work like other American boys. — Labor, Washington, D. C.

Why Some Prefer to Work In the Night.

WASHINGTON—All my life, I have groped futilely to build into understandable words the story of the fascinating mental fertility of the wee, small hours of the night—or perhaps, more correctly, the early morning.

It remains extremely doubtful if I ever succeed. But there surely is no misdemeanor in making one more attempt.

It was the taxi-driver who started me pondering on the subject again.

I had asked him why he worked the late hours of the night, since he had just complained about those being the least remunerative hours of the allotted twenty-four.

"That's what my wife keeps asking," he replied slowly, "and it's sort of hard to answer. I guess it's because I like to think—oh, not about anything in particular—I just like to think. And there's no time in the world as good for thinking as between midnight and, say, six or seven in the morning. . . ."

Sitting there in the darkness of the back seat, as the cab cruised silently through the deserted streets at 4 o'clock in the morning, I nodded understanding and agreement with him.

Yet, it has always seemed next to impossible to explain why.

Years ago, when I was still living at home while teaching country school, working on my first newspaper and trying to write the Great American Novel, my father used to remonstrate with me.

"There's no sense in sitting up half the night like you're doing," he would say. "There's nothing you can do in four or five hours at the tag end of the day that you couldn't do in at least half that time early in the morning—after a good night's sleep!"

I knew he was right—at least about a great many things. But I knew he was wrong about what I was doing those nights . . . trying to think.

Finally, I said to him:

"Look, Dad. You're out in the fields alone all day. All day you have time to think, time to concentrate, time to fight anything that's worrying you right through to the finish.

"Well, I don't have that time. All day, I'm surrounded by people—little people or big people. They all have problems, worries, something to talk about, something to interrupt you with. Then I come home, and in a way it's the same thing. The family all has problems, and they all get talked over—and the upshot is that I never get a chance to just sit down and think. After everybody's gone to bed, and things are quiet, I get that chance. . . ."

It was a stumbling explanation, but Dad was an understanding man. He nodded.

"I guess I see what you mean," he said slowly, "but is it worth all the sleep you're losing?"

I told him that sometimes it was, and he never brought up the subject again—except once when I was maintaining the same hours while keeping company with a particularly attractive girl.

"Do you mean to tell me," he asked quizzically one morning as we picked up our stools to start milking, "that you're thinking again?"

As time went by, in the years that followed, I found that Dad was right about practical, routine work. If examination papers were to be graded or a spot news story to be written, it could be better done with the freshness of early morning blending with the rest of a night's sleep in your mind or body.

But if it was a job that required thoughtful, intense, unbroken concentration, there was no time which could successfully substitute for the early morning hours—when all the world seemed asleep.

Then, in the utter stillness, a great clarity seemed to come, and problems which had been tossing around, helter-skelter, in my mind seemed to fall into their proper place, like pieces of a jigsaw puzzle. Then, and then only, did many a tough proposition or task come into proper focus and perspective.

Still, it is hard to explain, and many people seem to consider the whole idea silly, ridiculous and temperamental—except, of course, those people who also work at night.

Denying Candidacy Is Part of Political Game.

WASHINGTON—It is somewhat refreshing to have an ambitious young fellow like Harold Stassen step right up to the front of the platform and say, clear and strong:

"I am a candidate for president."

It was highlighted by contrast. For, on the same day, Senator Vandenberg (R., Mich.) had backed away shyly and said he wasn't a candidate. And the day before Senator Taft (R., O.) had said at Atlanta that he wasn't an "active candidate," whatever that means. And subsequently, Governor Dewey of New York said he was not ready to announce his candidacy.

Despite the natural egotism of politicians, they can become the most shrinking violets whenever anyone dares suggest that perhaps they might like to be president.

And, all the time their wives know the secret. And they figuratively have their acceptance speeches prepared, ready for delivery with appropriate gestures and emphasis. They can almost feel on their faces—properly upturned—the chill January wind that sweeps across the plaza in front of the Capitol where presidents take their oaths.

There's nothing quite like the etiquette that's grown up about this business of being a presidential candidate. All political punctilio is strange, but this part of the code is the most strange and amusing.

It permits an otherwise honest man, for example, to stand up and tell a straight-faced lie, which he knows he is telling and the public knows he is telling.

This is said advisedly, for some who now are denying they are candidates are doing quite a lot, and so are their friends, to promote their candidacies—and some of them got busy long ago.

The etiquette has some background in convention and some in practical psychology.

For instance, we love that old saying about the office seeking the man, and like to think it's true. But it's a good deal like that song "Did You Ever See a Dream Walking?" Did anyone ever see an office out looking for a man? Not if the man saw the office first—and he usually does.

Then there's the practical reason—and this part of it has some backing in public psychology—that if a man declares himself too early, then he's out in the open where his enemies can sharpshoot and kill him off.

That is one of the first things every political writer learns. He never forgets it, he never lets the public forget it, and he never lets the candidates forget it, the dear shy gentlemen.

But don't think, just because a fellow doesn't declare himself, that he hasn't his troubles, and is not the target of stratagems, and sometimes devious and dark they are, and behind the scenes.

Don't think for a minute that brothers Taft and Dewey and Bricker and Vandenberg and Warren and Saltonstall, and any others who might be ambitious, are not watching, with eagle eye, just what each is doing.

Mr. Dewey, you may recall, was not officially a candidate in 1944 until practically the moment of his nomination.

Franklin D. Roosevelt was a coy gentleman, too, back in 1931. Oh no, he wasn't a candidate either.

Yet, all the time, a great big fellow named Jim Farley was traveling about the country lining up delegates—and a right good job he did, too.

Self-Interest Is Barrier to World Trade.

WASHINGTON—The state department negotiators who helped to frame the outline of the proposed international trade organization have just returned from London. They brought with them a fat document which will promptly be put away in a state department safe.

There are several high hurdles to get over before the new organization can be approved.

There are skeptics on both sides of the Atlantic who believe that the project will never get beyond the stage of a hopeful dream.

And among these skeptics are both Britishers and Americans who hope that the proposal will be stillborn.

On both sides the old suspicions and prejudices are strong. Before the British will sign on the dotted line, they want definite proof of our intentions to lower tariffs and remove other barriers that now stand in the way of our trade with the rest of the world.

That is why a showdown conference has been set for April in Geneva, Switzerland. That conference will give representatives of all nations participating a chance to work out bilateral trade agreements within the framework of the proposed organization.

In other words, the United States will be told at Geneva to put up or shut up. Either we make broad trade and tariff concessions or the British, the Canadians and the others will not go along with our idea of a world trade organization

Above all, the British want to know whether we mean what we say when we talk about freeing the channels of world trade. In England, there is an influential group, both within and without the Labor government, that regards the proposed ITO as too frail a support to lean on. They favor setting up something like the prewar system of "empire preference." They will be watching the results of the Geneva conference with their fingers crossed.

Long before the Geneva meeting, the senate will hold hearings on the proposed organization. These hearings are certain to be a sounding board for American interests unalterably opposed to trade concessions by this country.

Representatives of the dairy industry and of the wool growers are preparing the same arguments they have used in the past. There is nothing to show that they have receded a single inch from their adamant opposition to any imports whatsoever, even imports of products that cannot be duplicated in this country.

They have been very successful in the past. Imports of wool and every kind of woolen goods, including the hand-loomed tweeds from Scotland and Ireland that we do not duplicate here, were never more than 5 per cent of our total consumption of wool. Imports of cheese have never been more than 1 or 2 per cent of total consumption.

Unless we are to shut ourselves off as a walled island, we must buy from the other nations. The time is coming when we shall have surpluses to sell.

Of one thing we can be sure. That is that the rest of the world will put up barriers against the products of our factories and fields if we do not set an example for reciprocal trade.

That was the goal toward which the venerable Cordell Hull worked with such zeal and conviction. That goal is even more important today than it was ten years ago.

Farmer's Diary: "Dreams of Youth."

I WATCHED a score of boys from 6 to 17, moving briskly toward the village school. Not a pinched-up, peaked face among them. The younger set skipped, ran races, and tussled for the joy of action. Upper gradesmen joked, laughed, whistled and exchanged banter. Every young individual overflowed with potential energy still unused.

The yellow buses were coming in from all the rural sections, crowded with lively youngsters. Six hundred or more shoved and pushed and shouted — surged through the open door of the public school and moved enmasse up the broad oaken stairway. The last bell rang. Quiet.

Musingly I reflected that it was not long ago that I was one of them. I know the noisy clatter, the harmless mischief, the frankly inquisitive moods that are theirs. . . . I know the dreams that while away dull classroom hours . . . snowy trails in quiet scented woodlands, a raccoon blinking sleepily high in some icy crotch as I knock upon his doorway far below . . . muskrat houses in the swamp, a clever old rat washing sweet flag root, his mouth and forepaws full . . . a fire along the ice covered stream just where frozen snow and ice bridge meet, and a fallen log to rest upon after skimming fleetly down river upon skates—the ice as colorless as the liquid flow beneath.

Nowadays one of the seriously entertaining dreams, no doubt, would be to fly the aeroplane that reflects the sun's last rays like burnished silver and moves in the crisp, still evening air against the sunset . . . or to ride in the rocket ship that pours living flame from its tail just above a long pointed column of white smoke . . . terrifically thrilling. What are the musty pages of old Caesar, or even the labors of Hercules, compared to science today? What have illusive nouns and verbs and participles to do with making one's self understood among thought pioneers?

Hold on . . . that's where we come in . . . we who are older and who covet the best for these youth. We must not hold them back, we must help them to be their best selves. They will far outdo us, but that is as it should be. Character and sportsmanship must go together in their minds . . . imagination and hard work must be paired off, for the sake of balance . . . material success must depend upon spiritual values or we shall have failed them.

Their exuberance must be guided in the right direction, and left free. We must not try to put "new wine into old wineskins"—nor to hold back the times to fit traditions. Rather let us raise the thoughts and aspirations of youth upon the shoulders of our own most tested, sacred convictions. Perhaps, in time, we and they shall pyramid to God.

Too Bad, Pop, But That Santa Masquerade Is Tough On Tend er Nerves of Tiny Tots!

By ROBERT RICHARDS

NEW YORK —(U.P.)— Whatever you do come Christmas, Pop, don't make like Santa Claus.

Don't hide behind false whiskers, or a pillow belly, and deceive your own children.

This somber warning came today direct from psychiatrist Wladimir Eliasberg, father of four and grandfather of one, who claims that the head of the family—in the eyes of his small fry—is overwhelming enough dressed in a plain business suit.

"When father comes out all decked up as Santa then it's simply too much for a tiny tot's nerves," Eliasberg added. "I know what I'm saying. To my children, I did it myself."

* * *

ELIASBERG SAID THAT THE data of Santa Claus is splendid for infant morale, and that it wasn't the sight of old St. Nick bobbing around in front of the fireplace that gives a child the jitters.

It's the combination of seeing his old man and Santa wrapped in the same bundle that throws him for an emotional loss.

"Let him think of Santa without seeing him," Eliasberg said, "and that is fine. That is one thing. But let him see his daddy all dressed in red, and that is definitely bad."

The phychiatrist pointed out that the child immediately sees something that belongs to his father, but also something that belongs to a mysterious apparition.

"Consequently," Eliasberg explained, "he is apt to confuse his father with a ghost—and the ghost with his father."

* * *

NEEDLESS TO SAY, this might create hysteria when the ghost-father finds the time has come to pull down Junior's pants and dust him off with a hair brush.

"At first there is nothing but excitement and delight," Eliasberg said, "but then there is fear. This fear, while it may be sometimes subconscious, tends to broaden the gulf between a father and his children."

"I want to repeat," Eliasberg said, "that I don't object to the idea of Santa Claus. I do not object to the child seeing a Santa, just so long as it is no one close to him."

He said the sight of a Santa-pop "disturbs the orientation of a child with the adult world."

This added burden is just too much for Junior. Ordinary grownups are plenty tough enough.

Workers Destroy Wrong Orchard

MARTINSBURG, W. Va.—(AP)—Bulldozers went to work in the wrong orchard Saturday, and before anybody realized the mistake, 600 bearing apple trees lay in ruins.

Officials, sorrowfully surveying the havoc, explained it this way: American fruit growers orchard engaged a contractor to clear 15 acres of old trees preparatory to replanting.

The two bulldozers sent by the contractor got on the adjoining property of Smith Orchard company by mistake and cleared exactly 15 acres of good, live trees bearing annually hundreds of bushels of Staymen, Delicious and Golden Delicious apples.

PHILADELPHIA —(AP)— Police Captain Walter Hill said today that William Barnes, accused of stealing 32 bicycles from children to sell to Christmas shoppers, lamented a vehicle saved for one of his own children was stolen from his back yard.

Perfume Heads Christmas Lists Of Ladies of the Capital

By DOROTHY WILLIAMS
(UP Staff Correspondent)

WASHINGTON—(UP)—Give her perfume, if you want to follow the last-minute Christmas shopping advice of the wives of President Truman's cabinet. Almost to a lady, they agree they'd welcome perfume in their own Yule stockings.

"Something in a floral fragrance is nice," Mrs. James F. Byrnes, wife of the secretary of state, said. "Flowers or candy are wonderful gifts, too, but I think women really prefer something more lasting."

Mrs. Byrnes proved herself the true wife of a diplomat by refusing to list any Christmas shopping don'ts for gentlemen shoppers

"Maybe they've bought a gift already," she said. "Why criticize?"

But Mrs. Robert P. Patterson, wife of the secretary of war, advised young men to avoid buying purses and compacts for their best girls.

"I think women feel about purses the way men do about neckties—they like to select their own," she said. "Compacts are a risky choice, too, but gloves are always a delightful gift."

Mrs. Patterson, like Mrs. Clinton P. Anderson, wife of the agriculture secretary, says her husband has a knack for picking out just the right gift without any hints from her.

Perfume is the first choice of Mrs. John W. Snyder, wife of the secretary of the treasury, and their daughter, Drucie, 21.

Mrs. Snyder lists a mirrored, gold edged perfume bottle tray as one of the most prized gifts she has received from her husband during the 27 Christmases of their marriage.

She credits some of the happiness of those Christmas seasons to the fact she has never presumed to give her husband a necktie. She says her husband always produces thoughtful gifts.

"Sometimes he wraps them himself," she said. "He does them so beautifully that he shames me."

For young women of her daughter's age, Mrs. Snyder suggests flowers, handkerchiefs or costume jewelry "that's good enough to be popular for some time."

Mrs. Tom C. Clark, the attorney general's wife, advocates giving your favorite girl some luxury she wouldn't buy herself. She recalls with keen pleasure the mink coat her husband gave her one Christmas, but adds that "we waited a good many years before we could afford it."

Something glittery like an evening bag, or perhaps a set of toiletries, or, of course, perfume, are her choices.

Your Child and His Belief In the Santa Claus Myth

By. GARRY CLEVELAND MYERS, Ph.D.

Some conscientious parents are puzzled over Santa Claus. A few are very sure they should teach the child as soon as he can understand that Santa is a myth.

But these same parents may have been reading folklore and other tales of fantasy to this child, thinking nothing of it. A few of these parents, alas, may read and tell the little child only here-and-now stories and other factual accounts. They suppose they should lead the child to enjoy only what he will enjoy and believe when he is twelve or twenty.

May Confuse Child.

Besides, they suppose that if they pretend that the stories they read or tell are true, the youngster will not only be confused later but may also lose faith in his parents by and by, especially as applied to Santa Claus.

Nor may the parent who is a layman in respect to psychology and philosophy of education be of this opinion. But her point of view is reinforced by what she may read in articles and books written by some of those who are supposed to be child experts. Naturally some parents are puzzled. "Who shall decide when doctors disagree?"

A Child's Imagination.

What these parents, even these "child experts" overlook, it seems to me, is that the child up to five or six normally lives in a world of make-believe. He walks and talks with imaginary things and persons. He even creates them when he wishes. His creations are less hampered then by realities than they will be when he grows older, for the older he grows after the age of five or six the less able, as a rule, he will be to create.

Naturally gnomes, elves and fairies are a normal part of the young child's world and Santa Claus is king of all of them. All this young child needs is to be encouraged in his creations by older persons who themselves are still able to let their imagination take wings. See, moreover, what illimitable happiness the young child may have with his imagination.

As each child grows and develops there comes a time when he wants to know about a story, "Did it really happen?" Or, "Is Santa Claus a real person?"

The answer then should be, of course, "No; we have just been playing that it is real," or "We have just been playing that he is." Let us then go on pretending with this child as long as he wishes. This is how we did with our own children and how these children are doing with our grandchildren, and we are convinced that the results have been very wholesome. I recall that as each of our own children at about the age of five or six grew disillusioned about Santa Claus, we asked him or her what about the next younger one. Always came the reply with apparent feeling, "Oh, no, don't tell him!" As these children approached maturity we asked each if he suffered shock or any ill effect from the way we did. All assured us they did not.

Father Can't Dictate To Older Women

By BEATRICE FAIRFAX

Here is an unmarried woman, 42 years old, with a nine-months-old baby, whose father is a man who came back into her life after a lapse of 14 years. This man is married, has no intention of getting a divorce, but wishes to retain a stranglehold over his old-time sweetheart. He is doing this by telling her that, if she doesn't do as he says, he will take the baby away from her.

"Now," she writes, "I don't know what to do.

"He gives me five dollars a week for the baby. I know we both did wrong and knew we were doing it. But that doesn't have anything to do with his objecting to my going to work. I can have my job back whenever I want it. I have to dress my baby and clothe myself, but he says five dollars is enough for the baby and he doesn't want me to go to work. He says, if I do, he will take the baby away from me and put him in a place where only himself and my mother can see him.

"I want to work so I can make a better living for my baby and get him things he needs and doesn't have and plan for his future. What shall I do?"

Why don't you have the courage to stand up for yourself and insist on doing what you wish to do and believe is right for you to do for yourself and your child?

This man has no right whatever to lay down any rules for you, and you are certainly under no obligation to pay any attention to him. What he, of course, is trying to do is to make you afraid to do as you please. But no court is going to allow him to take the baby away from you, unless he can prove that you are not a fit person to bring up the child, and I doubt very much whether he would attempt to do anything of that sort. If he should try to take the baby away without going to court about it, that is, to kidnap him, you can go to court about it yourself.

Why don't you take your baby and go to some other town and make a living for yourself and the child? If you can go to work in one place you can do so in another, and you could probably make enough so that you can do without this man's petty five dollars. That woud seem to me your best plan.

If, however, you don't want to go away and start life over again somewhere else, then make up your mind to see this man no more, and go ahead on your own. You can do without his money, anyhow, if you go back to your old job.

HOROSCOPE

For Tuesday, December 24.

THE auguries are for a day in which the festivity and high spirits of the holiday season should be tempered by safe, discriminating, shrewd and alert activities and conduct, since an over-weening impulse to erratic acts or extremes of emotionalism might bring sorrow and regrets. While there are excellent stimuli to the higher aspects of the joyous occasion, any excess or indiscretion would involve harm, estrangements and deep-seated entanglements.

Those whose birthday it is may find themselves in a year of progress, high purpose and practical patterns in which the spirit of benevolence and good will are due to survive throughout the year and perhaps far into the future. An important change seems imminent, with the prospect of the fruition of long-cherished hopes, wishes and aspirations, as well as realistic goals or ambitions. Enlarged contacts, important persons, financial increase as well as romantic adventure are presaged for those who merit such benefits.

A child born on this day should possess many skills, talents and aspirations for an efficient, progressive and happy life.

Farm Income Up 14 Per Cent In '46

EARNINGS HIT HIGH RECORD, REPORT SHOWS

Larger Livestock Marketings Boost Cash Returns.

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—The agriculture department reported today that cash farm income during the first 11 months of 1946 totalled $21,600,000,000, an increase of 14 per cent over the corresponding period last year.

Department officials said the earnings made it virtually certain cash farm income will set a new record in 1946.

Receipts from livestock were up about 10 per cent over last year despite marketing slumps in June and September when producers were protesting OPA price ceilings. Crop cash returns were about 19 per cent higher than in 1945.

Much of the cash income increase was due to larger livestock marketings and higher prices during the last half of October. The increase in crop receipts resulted mainly from hikes in prices of oil-bearing crops after controls were junked.

Although no detailed breakdown on November farm income is available, the department estimated it at about $3,000,000,000. This is down 10 per cent from October but some 30 per cent above November, 1945.

Farmers' income from livestock and livestock products during the 10-months ending in October was $10,265,000,000, while cash receipts from crops was $8,305,000,000.

The livestock returns included $5,157,000,000 for meat animals, $2,883,000,000 from dairy products, $2,036,000,000 from poultry and eggs, and $189,000,000 from miscellaneous.

Crop receipts included: Food grains, $1,542,000,000; feed crops, $1,294,000,000, cotton, $1,093,000,000, oil-bearing crops $463,000,000; tobacco, $753,00,000, vegetables, $1,421,000,000, fruits and nuts, $1,235,000,000, and others $504,000,000.

Army, Navy Agree On Training Plan

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)— Army and navy officials have outlined almost identical military training programs which they plan to present to the next congress.

Addressing the National Security committee of the Veterans of Foreign Wars, spokesmen for the war and navy department said they favored a universal military training law to provide a year of continuous training—or its equivalent—for boys between 17 and 20.

This training, they said, could include six months of boot or military training and then six months in the naval or military reserve or six months in college studying for the reserve.

Now Arline's Beginning to Repeat Names

HOLLYWOOD —(INS)— Arline Judge Ruggles topping Addams Ryan is going to add another Topping to her already impressive array of names.

Friends have disclosed that the former actress plans to wed her brother-in-law, Henry J. (Bob) Topping, jr., who inherited a tinplate fortune.

The ceremony is to take place, it was explained, after Miss Judge divorces husband No. 4, Morgan Ryan, New York radio executive. Now in Hollywood, she plans to leave for Florida after the holidays to take care of that formality.

In marrying the one-time actress, Topping will become his nephew's stepfather. The nephew is Bob Topping, who is Dan Topping's son and who was named after the uncle who is going to marry his mother.

Topping also will become stepfather of another boy. He is Charles Ruggles, 13-year-old son of Miss Judge and her first husband, film director Wesley Ruggles.

The wealthy Dan Topping was Miss Judge's second husband. After that she was married briefly to Capt. John Addams, formerly of the British army, and then to Ryan.

DEMS DIVIDED IN SUPPORT OF PARTY LEADER

Hannegan Is Major Political Enigma in Washington.

WASHINGTON — (INS) — The major political enigma in Washington today was the future of Robert E. Hannegan as Democratic national chairman.

Rumors long have prevailed that Hannegan will retire next month because of ill health. He now is in Florida vacationing and trying to reduce high blood pressure. He has a date for a final hospital checkup in Washington in mid-January.

Many top Democratic leaders desire Hannegan's retirement. Congressional Democrats say that President Truman would like a new chairman to prepare and conduct the 1948 presidential campaign but there has been no such signal from the White House.

Hannegan is blamed generally for the major Democratic slaughter last November when Republicans captured both house and senate in the new congress. Capitol critics say Hannegan based his campaign strategy for the last two years on an alliance with left wing forces while losing millions of middle-of-the-road Americans. Friends say the defeat was due to accumulated national unrest over which he had no control.

Best information from the White House is that Mr. Truman will not ask for Hannegan's retirement but is willing to accept his resignation, not only as chairman but as postmaster general as well. A presidential friend observed:

"Mr. Truman will not ask for Bob's resignation. He doesn't treat a friend that way."

At Democratic headquarters, officials were unaware of Hannegan's plans. One source said: "It is up to Hannegan's doctor. If his health permits, Hannegan will remain."

The company also plans to operate six circuits between Willard and Plymouth, instead of the present four.

Christmas 1946

It may not have the happy ring to it we've known of old, but "MERRY CHRISTMAS" is still the best hope of the world, and in all sincerity, we give you the time honored greeting.

The losses and anxieties of war were hard to take, but it must be that as a nation, we had a jolt like that coming. The war has made us more aware of our blessings about which we had grown complacent. It is teaching us the law of the brotherhood of man, for we now find that to continue the doctrine of democracy for ourselves, it must not be withheld from those in other lands.

We think this is very much an individual matter. To commemorate Christ's birthday is to acknowledge His principles by citizens of a Christian nation. Our society of self-government and free enterprise has been a blessing to every American. If it is to resist the turmoil of world unrest, intelligent people everywhere must advocate the need for men to like one another and to practice the idea of live and let live. We must get close to the Christmas Ideal every day of the year.

Freedom is our greatest heritage. It was established on the basis of equal rights and opportunities, and that is the only basis on which it will survive. Let us keep it and all other American traditions.

MANSFIELD NEWS-JOURNAL

MONDAY, DECEMBER 23, 1946 TELEPHONE 4251-6 PAGE ELEVEN

Winchell — On Broadway

PHILLIPS H. LORD (whose "Gang Busters" is familiar to all the decimals that make up the Hooper radio ratings) sent this the day ex-Police Comm. L. J. Valentine died. . . One rainy night (in Brooklyn) a man walked up and down a railroad platform (nervously looking over his shoulder) near a mailbox. . . This drew the attention of two alert detectives standing in the shadows. . . Finally the furtive fellow took an envelope from a pocket and posted it in the box. . . In a few minutes he was at headquarters, where he said he had mailed "a fan letter". . . When Lord got it next a. m., it contained a threat to snatch Lord's two daughters unless he met the sender (in the Long Island woods) with a bundle of money. . . "A tribute," adds Mr. Lord, "to the efficiency of New York's 'Finest,' who caught a would-be kidnapper even before he commiteed his crime! They had his confession 25 minutes later, and he was in a cell even before I got the letter!"

* * *

H. L. Mencken has just penned a tender tale titled "Christmas.. (Knopf) concerning the wonders of the Yuletide season.

Menck is an atheist.

* * *

It happened the other night in a midtown restaurant on Seventh avenue in the 400 block. . . A man and a woman were waiting for dinner when she suddenly fell forward. . . The man grabbed his hat and coat and started to go but was stopped. "You can't leave her that way," he was told by the manager. . . A doctor in the place pronounced her dead. . . The escort looked both startled and annoyed and again started to leave. The manager, a waiter and a patron held him back. . . He wouldn't respond at first but finally admitted he didn't know her name. . . He'd met her—ten minutes before!

* * *

Why do we publish gossip and nonsense? A hinterland weekly offers the best reply. To wit: "If you get born, marry, have a baby, die, or some other accident happens to you, please let us know—not that we give a darn—but most of our readers have a lot of curiosity."

* * *

There was something pathetic in Truman's confession at a press conference the other day. In discussing a certain problem he said: "And I really know what I am talking about—this time."

* * *

Talk about nonsensorship: Britain's sensitive Labor government clamped a nix on those who were twitting its members on the stage. Those who go in for terror campaigns in Palestine can't stand slampooning. It proves again that humor is the most devastating weapon of all. . . But what we started out to report is this: Those leaders will also have to ban most of Gilbert and Sullivan's oprettas—because they poke fun at the house of lords.

* * *

A few editorial pages and writers have been deriding some of the published exposes on Hitlerish trouble-makers. . . Their danger is tut-tutted. . . But Georgia's Dan Duke revealed that the storm-trooper gang (in Atlanta) not only plotted to seize the government (and turn it into a dictatorship) but, more important—that they had assembled an arsenal of dynamite, shotguns, etc.!

Not a water pistol in the lot.

Pegler — Fair Enough

NEW YORK—The decision of the CIO, and the New York state council of the same, to abate the organized disorder of mass "marches" on our political temples, and other recent developments, suggest that, as Mr. Dooley said of the supreme court, the boss unioneers follow the election returns.

The latest of these merchanized fascist demonstrations, the "march" on Albany, wheezed up the hill, fell apart and was repudiated even by elements of the juvenile American Veterans' committee. The newspaper coverage had calmly revealed the organization and planning of the demonstration in a way that inevitably compared it to Benito Mussolini's march on Rome, so often derided as a comfortable journey, no more spontaneous than a heavyweight championship fight. The aroused crusaders had not rallied on an impulse to stride the road by stages, recruiting a hot rabble of hungering revolutionaries as they went. On the contrary, they met by appointment, rode the train to Albany in reserved accommodations, amusing themselves with political shop-talk, and were received with polite and legally correct hauteur by the cops and civil officers of the elected government of the stateliest republic or our sisterhood.

Earlier "marches," from the historic hike of General Jacob Coxey's tatterdemalions on through the larkish Washington excursion of the veterans of World War I to demand a bonus, were more authentic, although many of those ancient warriors drove the route in their own cars and few had scars to show for their conquest of the Hun. Thereafter, we had "hunger-marches" of a well-fed proletariat who rode the cushions to rendezvous in the suburbs of Washington where the Communists marshaled them in companies and led them straight into the muzzles of the movie cameras.

* * *

WHEN "MARCHERS" go by train, each with his ticket, like commuters, and patronize the diners, like common bureaucrats, they discredit themselves and frustrate their purpose. Moreover, as Philip Murray, of the CIO, has been reminded, political picketing by mobs might some time strike St. Patrick's cathedral or any other house of worship, and the public reaction would be severe. Unions of the CIO, under Communist compulsion, have picketed newspapers in protest against their editorial policies and the same inspiration might one day decide that some divine had uttered "fascist" sentiments, a feasible supposition, and take action against religious freedom in the name of the CIO.

Most of us of the laity have moderately enjoyed such attentions. I know I was more pleased than grieved when the National Maritime union turned out a guard of honor 2,500 strong, in time of war, to serenade my cherished employer's premises with demands for my discharge. This was a tribute that I saw only in the pictures, being out of town at the time, but my satisfaction was the greater when it occurred to me to ask in print a few days later how the NMU could muster that many hardy beach-combers for political service when the government was sending half-trained American boys to sea on the merchant vessels.

Othman — On Anything

WASHINGTON—(U.P.)—My poor bride gets no black lace nightgown this Christmas, either.

Last year there weren't any such female monkeyshines on sale in all Washington; this season there were plenty. I found one black gown for $6.95, but the lady said it wasn't guaranteed. She did not recommend it. She said she doubted if it would last. The second washing, blooie for sure. Why she was expected to sell such cheesecloth she said she did not know.

A block and a half down F street, where federal stenographer and diplomat's wife jostle for geegaws, I looked at another midnight gown, $49.50. I asked, would it wear? This lady didn't exactly sneer; she said it was too beautiful for wearing purposes.

I got out of there. What I'm trying to say in my own awkward way (you, too, sir, would feel awkward if you'd been shopping for nightgowns) is that strange things seem to be happening here this Christmas shopping season. It may be that the government clerks are worrying about their jobs. Perhaps they're simply tired of getting stung.

A gent in a 13th street doorway was doing a good business in giant balloons, 15 cents. In the capital's biggest radio department, jammed with radios big and little, phonographs, and television sets, was a large sign which said: "Please take a card from the receptionist and wait your turn for a salesman." Haw.

There were no cards. No receptionist. Nor customers, either. A record tootled about the Silent Night over and over once again; the idle salesman looked uphappy. I priced a television widget: $1,100, plus tax.

* * *

THE TOY DEPARTMENT seemed busy. The trickiest electric train I ever saw was chuffing around the track. It was a beauty with two headlights, red running gear and polished brass trimmings. Imported from Germany, the clerk said, by arrangement with the U. S. Army. Price $110.

I poked my head in the door of two specialty shops, both of which had big signs: Nylons. Each place was nearly empty.

Only line of customers on the sidewalk (to remind a fellow of wartime Washington) was in front of a candy shop where chocolates were 80 cents a pound. Another store, where bon-bons nestle on pure white velvet and retail at $2 and up a pound, I did not enter. Neither did anybody else.

Here and there, to the goggle-eyed amazement of Washingtonians, were bargain sales before Christmas. Electric heaters, 40 per cent off. Mantel radios marked down. Fur coats, reduced 25 per cent.

The liquor dealers were having their own troubles making up their minds. Scotch $7.99 at one store; the same brand, $11.50 around the corner; $8.20 in the next block. Bourbon prices varied as much and this year it paid dividends to shop for eggnog makings.

I trudged down F street and back up G street, all the way to 14th street, without ever getting my bride her gift. At this corner I had an inspiration, but found I was not alone. I line up at the desk in the marble lobby. I eventually worked my way to the beautiful brunette, who gave me a big smile and said what size? I ordered the $50 job and she said, "Yes sir, that will be $37.50."

So Mrs. O. gets a handsome engraving off our tree this Christmas. I hope she likes it, though I would like to suggest to John Snyder that we've got a peace on. War savings bond, indeed! This is Christmas, 1946, John. Remember? Peace on earth and good will and stuff?

Errant Speeders Forfeit $25 Bonds

Two motorists forfeited $25 bonds by failing to appear for hearing on speeding charges today in municipal court.

Booked on the charges were Walter F. Uffman, of Norwood, and Wallace R. Reichelt, of Cleveland.

Dwight O. Corwin, of Shelby, was fined $5 and costs on a charge of failing to display an operator's license.

Case of Conrad V. Urban, Erie, R. D. 3, Pa., charged with crossing a yellow line, was set for Jan. 8. He was released under $25 bond.

MRS. RAY NAMED RELIGIOUS ED SCHOOL TEACHER

Will Instruct Third and Fourth Grade Pupils.

Mrs. Charles A. Ray, 411 South Main street, has been appointed religious education teacher for the third and fourth grades in Mansfield public schools. She will replace Miss Ruth Cowley of Cincinnati, who resigned because of ill health.

Mrs. Ray's appointment was announced today by the Mansfield Council of Religious Education which supervises religious education in city schools. She will begin her duties when schools resume their sessions after the holidays.

Mrs. Ray will be one of two religious educational teachers in the city. The other, Mrs. Mary Jones has charge of instruction in the fifth and sixth grades.

* * *

COMING TO MANSFIELD IN 1931, Mrs. Ray has been actively connected with religious education in the city for many years, mostly through her membership with the First Methodist church. She was superintendent of the junior department in that church for 13 years. Eleven years of that time she was counselor for young people of the church.

For the last three years she has been superintendent of the primary department in the First Methodist.

For one year, Mrs. Ray was director of religious education at the First Christian church of Mansfield and for another three years she was affiliated with the ADC and blind program in the city.

* * *

HER TRAINING FOR SUCH work includes courses at the Ball State Teachers college at Muncie, Ind. and Ashland college. She has completed two summer terms at Ohio Wesleyan university, where she took special courses in religious education for children.

Mrs. Ray holds four certificates for completion of courses in children's work. Aside from her work at the First Methodist church she has taught for six years with the community Bible training class and will again join the staff for this year's program. She taught in the primary grades of Mansfield schools for six years and was secretary at Bowman school this fall resigning to take over the religious education position.

FIND REACHES QUARTER MARK

An extra $5,000, largely in unsolicited gifts, boosted the Friendly House campaign to $15,000 over the week-end, campaign officials announced today.

May's total leaves $45,000 still to be collected by Jan. 15 for the $60,000 drive toward a new settlement house.

Additional gifts came from these donors, Paul Endriss campaign chairman, reported: Omega Tau Gamma sorority, $50; Alfred I. Harrington Post, VFW, $100; Ladies' Aid Society of St. John's Lutheran church, $25; Bowman school teachers, $47; and children of Prospect school, $10.67.

The annual Christmas party for Friendly House children will be held at 7:30 p. m. today with the Hemt club of Mansfield as host. The party will feature a dance revue by the Ethyl Battin dance studio, a visit from Santa and distribution of gifts.

The current campaign represents the agency's share of building costs. Seventy per cent of the total estimated cost of $235,000 will be met by Mansfield manufacturers through the Richland Foundation.

Pandora's Box Killer Gets Life

PORTLAND, Ore. —(INS)— James Wesley Bowden, 49, who caused his wife to open a "pandora box" wired with six sticks of dynamite, faced a life term for first degree murder today.

A jury of seven men and five women spared Bowden death in the gas chamber with a recommendation of life imprisonment. Circuit Judge Walter L. Tooze will sentence Bowden Friday. Bowden's wife, Fern, 46, was blown to bits in the basement of their last Portland home July 27 by a trap which he said he had meant for Mrs. Bowden's friend, George Hockenyos.

2 MEN INJURED IN CITY TRAFFIC OVER WEEKEND

Andrew Dials, 59, of 734 McPherson street, suffered scalp lacerations and body bruises at 7 a. m. today when he was struck by an automobile driven by Charles C. Lehnhart, 34, of 38 Mansfield avenue. The accident occurred on North Diamond street near Olive.

Lehnhart told police Dials ran across the street into the path of his machine and that he couldn't avoid striking him. Lehnhart was not held.

Albert A. J. West, 68, of 135 Park avenue east, was treated and released at General hospital last night for minor injuries received when the door mirror of a car driven by Robert M. Anthony, 20, R. D. 4, Mansfield, struck him on the hand as the vehicle made a left turn at Park avenue east and Hedges street.

In the only other accident reported by police over the week-end, Richard C. Schutters, 17, of 16 Sunset boulevard, escaped injury when his car skidded and overturned onto another automobile.

Schutters said he skidded on Newman street on a bridge between Fifth and Orange streets at 8 p. m. yesterday. The vehicle struck the abutment, rolled over and hit a car operated by Robert H. Sheldon, 33, of 680 Woodhill road. Both cars were damaged, but neither man was injured.

SCOUTS ENJOY YULE PARTY

Sixty members of Boy Scout Troop No. 18, held their annual Christmas party in the Central Methodist church Saturday night with the program presented by troop personnel.

The Scouts sang Christmas carols, led by Senior Patrol Leader Harry Wilmoth. A concert of Christmas music was played by an orchestra of troop members, directed by Charles Jones.

The cobra patrol, led by Bob Tennant, presented a Christmas play. The cast included Keith DeVore, Tom Plaut, Tom Goodheart, Leon and Duane Weekly, Chris Ford, Charles Mertler, Tennant and Frank Plaut. The play was written by Frank Plaut.. A stunt, staged by the Pine Tree Patrol, was planned by Chuck Watts with Ken McCally playing Santa Claus. Mrs. John Roman gave a Christmas reading.

Following an exchange of gifts, a late supper was served by representatives of the Moms and Dads club of the troop.

Lots of Folks Eat Cookies Because of One Little Ad

News-Journal circulation personnel munched Christmas cookies today all because a "lost and found" ad paid off with big dividends for Mrs. W. G. Pearson, Fleming Falls road.

Three weeks ago, Mrs. Pearson lost her sugar ration stamp. The two pounds of sugar in her cupboard would have to last until Jan. 1 unless . . .

Mrs. Pearson ran an ad. Appealing for either the return of the lost stamp or for the loan of one, the housewife said she would bake cookies for any person supplementing her scarce supply.

Ten ration stamps arrived promptly through the mails. Bulk sugar literally rolled in from friends and neighbors. Requests to "buy" bead and rolls, if she received extra sugar, arrived by the dozen.

* * *

SUGAR EVEN CAME FROM California where Mrs. Pearson's son and daughter spread the news of their mother's misfortune.

"I made up my mind to share this good luck with others, Mrs. Pearson said in a letter to the circulation employes. "So I fixed 22 boxes of cakes and cookies for relatives, friends, neighbors and for our church home. Now, after baking for all those who sent me sugar stamps and for my friends I still have 48 pounds of sugar left in my cupboard and lots of cookies and cake for the holidays."

(Editor's note: The circulation department found the cookies so delicious they didn't have one left for the reporter they told about them or the ad department.)

WORKER HURT AS BARREL EXPLODES

Frank McMullen, 38, a welder at the Westinghouse plant, was seriously injured early today at the plant when a drum which he was cutting open with a torch exploded.

He was taken to General hospital, where he was reported suffering from a broken arm and nose, deep facial lacerations and body burns.

McMullen, who lives on Springmill road, was cut severely when the force of the explosion shattered his goggles and drove pieces of glass into his face.

The accident occurred about 6:30 a. m.

Lions Host At Christmas Show

The Mansfield Lions club today was host to 57 youngsters of the Richland county childrens home at a Christmas party at the Park theater. The event was sponsored in cooperation with Ralph Shaffer, theater manager.

Staged at 1 p. m., the party included the showing of "Pinocchio," a Walt Disney technicolor cartoon movie.

Up and Down The Street

INTERNATIONAL TREE—

It isn't often that a Christmas tree has a history. But the 22 foot tree which decorates St. Paul's Lutheran church has a story behind it. Seeds from which the tree were grown were brought to America from Germany 22 years ago. They were planted by Mrs. Anna Hahn Schollenberger, of Crestline, a member of the church, in the garden at her home. This year, the tree was cut down and brought to Mansfield, to become a symbol of international fellowship and goodwill at St. Paul's.

WORKED FOR THEM—

Fifty patients at General hospital will get brightly decorated Christmas covers for their trays as gifts from 13 Girl Scouts. The girls sold Christmas cards to get money to buy materials for the covers. Making of the gay accessories is a part of the Junior Red Cross program in city schools.

LAWSUIT FILED AGAINST CITY

A third law suit against the city for water damage suffered when a fire hydrant broke at the corner of West Third and North Walnut streets Christmas night, 1944, was filed in common pleas court today.

The S. S. Kresge company is the plaintiff, charging city officials were negligent when they allegedly failed to turn off the water after the break was known. The firm asks $1,265 as compensation for loss of merchandise stored in the basement.

Other suits growing out of the incident include those of Scattergood and Son, Inc., which is asking $12,500, and James and Lillian Dickson, owners of the building housing the Scattergood store, who ask $600. The Dicksons filed their suit last Sept. 17 and Scattergood filed Dec. 17, 1945.

Mrs. Lewis, 80, Taken by Death

Mrs. Thuressia Shriner Lewis, 80, died early Sunday at her home, 66 Bentley street, after an extended illness.

Born Aug. 14, 1866, in Wayne county, Mrs. Lewis came to Mansfield 50 years ago.

Surviving are one son, Harvey Shriner of Mansfield; one daughter, Msr. A. Ruth Codger of Cleveland; two grandchildren, two great-grandchildren; one great-great grandchild, and one niece.

Funeral services will be held Tuesday at 2 p. m. from the Geiger funeral home, conducted by Rev. Ben F. Hagelbarger, pastor of the First Christian church. Burial will be in Mansfield cemetery. Friends may call at the funeral home until time of services.

REJECTS OFFER

John Biggs, former employe in the state highway department, today said he had informed Ralph Hardy, chairman of the Republican county executive committee, that he could not accept the committee's endorsement for a job in the department. He cited physical disability as the cause for the rejection.

MANSFIELDERS GRIND MEAL ON ANCIENT STONE

County Landmark Was Once Owned By Former Ohio Governor.

By GEORGE SATTLER

The ancient machinery of the old Spring Mill, which first ground corn meal for Richland county pioneers 131 years ago, is back on the job again.

Idle for a number of years, the historic old landmark was put into operation a month ago by two returned veterans and life-long friends, William J. Breitinger and Robert Blackledge, both of Mansfield.

"Of course not all the old machinery is in working order now," Breitinger said. "But we are using some of it—including the old French millstone we found in the place."

However, the new proprietors had to buy a gasoline engine to turn the milling machinery, instead of the old mill wheel.

Although the wheel remains in good condition, the two mill ponds are out of repair and do not hold enough water to operate the mill.

"We plan to put the mill ponds back in shape next spring," Blackledge said. "Then we will use water power entirely, just as the first mill-owner did 130 years ago."

According to Blackledge, he and Breitinger have had their "eyes on the mill" for a number of years.

"It wasn't until after the war though that we really got interested in operating the mill," Breitinger said. "Both Bob and I were fed up with being 'bossed around,' so we decided to take over the place and go into business for ourselves."

* * *

BREITINGER AND BLACKLEDGE are not new hands at the milling business, by any means. When children they lived in the neighborhood and worked at the mill when it was operated by John Gfrer.

Gfrer, now retired, owns the old landmark and leases it to the veterans. He still lives near the mill, which is situated about six miles northwest of Mansfield, just north of Route 39.

The two veterans already have ground more than 7,000 pounds of corn meal and feed, but they consider this only the beginning.

"Right now we have a contract with a local wholesaler to supply him with corn meal," Breitinger said. "Also many people who like old fashioned corn meal are beginning to place orders."

* * *

ALTHOUGH THE OLD MILL has been reinforced many times with brick and new mortar, the beams and one side of the building remain just as they were 131 years ago. In some parts of the building square nails and wooden pegs, construction aids of that period, still can be seen.

The huge beams are roughhewn walnut and still look sturdy.

The mill, called "Spring Mill" because the ponds were fed by two huge springs, was built in 1815 by Joseph Welch, one of the county's first settlers.

Since then the mill has changed hands many times. One of its most famous owners was Mordecai Bartley, who became governor of Ohio and after whom Bartley avenue was named.

800 EMPLOYES GET TURKEYS

Approximately 800 Tappan Stove company employes had turkey and trimmings "on the house" today. All three shifts were guests of the company for the annual Christmas dinner.

Tomorrow from 11 a. m. until 4 p. m. more than five tons of frozen, oven-dressed turkeys will be distributed to employes, following the traditional custom. Each worker will receive a 12 to 13 pound bird.

The dinners today were served at the plant at 10:45 a. m. for the office force, at 2 p. m. for the second shift in the factory and at 6 p. m. for the third shift. The dinners included 600 pounds of turkey, 72 quarts of cranberry sauce, 115 pounds of creamed peas, 180 pounds of cole slaw, 150 quarts of ice cream, 900 pieces of cake, 40 gallons of coffee and 150 dozen rolls

The plant will be closed Christmas day to give employes the day with their families. Except for 150 workers to report back for inventory on Thursday, all employes will remain away from work until Jan. 2, when full operations will be resumed.

Two-Man Cup Team Named

MELBOURNE, Australia—(AP)—The United States will send a two-man team into the Davis cup challenge round here this week for the first time since the days of Bill Tilden and Bill Johnston, a quarter of a century ago.

Ted Schroeder of Glendale, Calif., will take on John Bromwich, ace of the Australian forces, and U. S. Champion Jack Kramer of Montebello, Calif., will face Dinny Pails in the opening singles matches Thursday.

This was announced today after Walter Pate, U. S. captain, and his Australian counterpart, Gerland Patterson, drew the names from the cup and it was learned authoritatively that the two Californians also would handle the doubles assignment for the U. S. team.

Schroeder, U. S. singles champion in 1942 when he whipped Frank Parker, another memebr of the present six-man U. S. cup squad, apparently won the second singles berth behind Kramer by reaching the Victorian tournament finals. He was defeated in straight sets by John Bromwich, Australia's ace, but en route to the championship round he conquered Dinny Pails, Australia's second singles man, in five sizzling sets.

Sheppard Might Fight Woodcock

NEW YORK—(U.P.)—Max Waxman, his sense of orderliness outraged by the present muddle of heavyweight challengers, offered today to provide clarification, if Bruce Woodcock will agree to fight Curtis Sheppard.

"Sheppard will belt his brains out—for free," said Waxman, Sheppard's manager and business manager of Jack Dempsey. Sheppard, a Baltimore Negro sometimes called "The Hatchet Man," is rated as the No. 1 heavyweight challenger by the Maryland State Athletic commission, Dempsey and Waxman. Woodcock is the British Empire champ.

Tennessee 11 Starts Drills

MIAMI, Fla.—(U.P.)—Coach Robert Neyland's Tennessee football team, 45 strong, was scheduled to begin secret practice sessions today for the New Year's day tussle with Rice Institute in the Orange bowl.

Tennessee arrived last night and Neyland immediately announced two daily workouts and told his men to concentrate on nothing but football. He said that he thought Rice would prove to be the toughest team his Volunteers had played this season.

Illini Arrive In Pasadena

PASADENA, Cal.—(U.P.)—Illinois was scheduled to arrive here today and eager Rose Bowl game fans were divided as to whether to go to the ticket windows to try for one of the last 8,000 tickets or go to the railroad station to get a glimpse of the Big Nine champions who will play UCLA on New Year's day.

East Gets Daily Workout

Named Woman Athlete of '46

NEW YORK—(AP)—Mrs. Mildred (Babe) Didrikson Zaharias, amateur champion of the nation's feminine golfers, was named the outstanding woman athlete of 1946 today, becoming the first star in the 16-year history of the annual Associated Press poll to win the honor three times.

The all-around athlete from Denver shares the 1946 sports spotlight with Glenn Davis, Army's three-time all-America halfback, who was selected Saturday as the No. 1 male athlete of the year over Heavyweight Boxing Champion Joe Louis.

Mrs. Zaharias, who has confined her athletic talents to the fairways in recent years, was first named sports queen in 1932 for her achievements in track and field. Her golfing prowess carried her to the top of the list again last year, 13 years later.

Among the 58 sports writers who voted, 33 of them cast their first place ballots for the Colorado sharpshooter, who won the all-America women's open tournament this year as well as the women's national amateur title.

Pauline Betz of Los Angeles, who won the United States and Wimbledon championships, finished second in the voting.

Ann Curtis of San Francisco, holder of the 400, 800 and 1,500-meeter freestyle swimming titles, was third. She was named the No. 1 feminine athlete in 1944 and was runner-up to Mrs. Zaharias last year.

Jim Daniell Voted Full Playoff Share

CLEVELAND—(AP)—Jim Daniell, former Cleveland Browns captain, who was dismissed from the squad last week following a ruckus with police, was voted a full share of the playoff game receipts.

Individual shares for the Browns amounted to $931.

The husky tackle, one of the first to reach the club's dressing room to congratulate the team on its victory, also was presented a pen and pencil set by the Browns.

GLADNESS AND SADNESS

Old Mother Nature speaks truly They are almost inseparable, each tempering the other So that which makes you glad may bring sadness to another, and the reverse is just as true.

Over in the Green Forest, standing perfectly still, was Farmer Brown's Boy watching Reddy Fox so intent on what he was doing that he had no idea that he was being watched He was burrowing under the hard crust that covered the deep snow. He had no thought for anything but what he was doing, digging out a dinner he sorely needed, for he was very, very hungry and this icy crust made it almost impossible to find anything he could eat. A Grouse had been trapped under that crust while sleeping in the snow A bird that size would make a good dinner any time, but it would be doubly good now.

So for once Reddy forgot to use ears and eyes and nose for anything but what he was doing, or else he was so hungry that he didn't care who might see him So it was that Farmer Brown's boy had approached undetected Reddy was working fast and hard. The snow flew out behind him just as you may have seen sand fly when you have watched a Dog digging after a Woodchuck

"Ha! So there is another Grouse under that crust It is a good thing I came back," said Former Brown's boy under his breath You know he had already set two young Grouse free there "That red-coated rascal isn't digging for nothing, or wouldn't be if I hadn't returned I don't blame him He can't live without eating, and Old Mother Nature made him an eater of meat He has just as much right to live as that Grouse has However I will have to interfere Then both will have a chance to live"

Reddy had burrowed in until only the white tip of his tail was outside. Now he backed out, pushing snow behind him "All right, you red scamp, I'll carry on from there" said Farmer Brown's boy, and grinned at the sudden bound of startled surprise made by Reddy

He ran a few steps then turned to face Farmer Brown's boy Such disappointment and dejection as showed in his face Farmer Brown's boy was truly sorry for him He guessed how hungry Reddy was "It is too bad old fellow" said he "I wish I had something for you, but I haven't with me I tell you what, you come around to the house tonight I'll leave something out for you and keep the Dogs in How about it?"

Of course Reddy didn't say how about it, for of course he didn't understand a word of this He merely moved off a little farther and turned to watch Farmer Brown's boy broke the crust where Reddy had been digging and then kept right on in that direction He broke for quite a distance He had even begun to wonder if Reddy had been mistaken, that there was no grouse there He kept on, however Finally he broke out a big piece of crust and saw something dark brown in the snow He stooped to reach for it when out burst a big bird in his very face Stout wings knocked off his cap as a Grouse whirred up in a tree

"That's that" said he as he looked over at Reddy Fox and grinned Reddy wasn't grinning He was hungrily looking up in that tree where his hoped-for dinner had flown and from which a moment later it flew again and disappeared among the trees

"I wonder if there is another around here somewhere There were four young Grouse in the flock before the snow I have found and set free three Perhaps the other one didn't get trapped Anyway I'll break a little more crust just in case the fourth one may be near," said Farmer Brown's boy, and once more went to work

A couple of minutes later he again saw something brown in the snow as he lifted away a big piece of crust This time no feathered bomb burst in his face He reached down and picked up the fourth Grouse He had not been in time to save this one "Too bad," said he sorrowfully as he stroked the brown feathers "Probably not as strong as the others or had less food in his crop when he went into the snow.

GROUP STUDIES CHAIN PAPERS

WASHINGTON—(AP)—Chairman Murray (D-Mont) of the senate small business committee has announced the "rapid growth and concentration of newspaper ownership by chains and individuals" will be investigated at public hearings beginning Jan. 7.

Murray told a reporter the inquiry, which has been questioned by some senators, is "not an attempt to go into the contents of papers at all—it will not try to judge the freedom of the press."

"Our sole purpose is to try and learn the problems of the smaller independently-owned newspapers of the country," he said. "The smaller papers, both daily and weekly, are having a difficult time. They face higher costs of labor and everything else from paper to machinery.

"We hope to develop what can be done by the government or by legislation to keep these small papers alive and independent."

Murray said one of the key points in the investigation will be the high cost and shortage of newsprint, a subject that has had attention from other congressional committees and government officials.

Other subjects listed for attention by Murray are postal rates for the smaller newspapers, possible government aid in financing, and tax problems of the independent publisher.

SUGAR STAMP 53 GOOD ON JAN. 1

WASHINGTON — (AP) — Opa said today spare stamp No. 53 would be good for five pounds of sugar beginning Jan. 1 and added an additional ration may become available within four months.

"It is anticipated," the agency said, "that the second consumer stamp for 1947 will be validated before spare stamp 53 expires" April 30.

OPA pointed to agriculture department estimates that the new sugar crop may be sufficiently large to allow an additional five pounds of sugar a person in 1947. This would make a total of 20 pounds on regular ration stamps. As for the canning sugar outlook for next year, an OPA official declared that "if the supply situation turns out as good as expected, there will be at least 10 pounds per person and possibly more."

Bonuses Hit Record In City

Mansfield Plants Distribute Close To Half Million To Employes For Christmas.

Reflecting prosperity in Mansfield this year, industries and business firms in the city have distributed nearly a half million dollars to several thousand workers in Christmas bonuses and profit sharing funds, a new high, a survey shows.

In several plants employes were given turkeys, free meals, and other gifts besides their bonus checks.

At the Tappan stove plant, $160,000 was set aside by company officials for an employe profit sharing fund. In addition each employe was given a turkey dinner and a turkey to take home.

The Gorman-Rupp company gave 110 employes bonus checks, as their last six months' share in company profits. The checks ranged up to $635 per employe. In addition, bonuses which have accrued under the employer-employe Christmas saving plan, gave each worker an increase of about $675.

All employes of the Dominion Electric company, who have been employed there since 1942 shared in a profit-sharing fund of $45,000. All supervision and office personnel were also given Christmas checks. Each employe also received a turkey.

* * *

Bakery Gives Bonus.

The older employes of the Nickles bakery company received checks for $50 and new employes received $25.

The 10 employes of the Richman Brothers company were given extra pay checks. Those who have been with the firm over five years received two weeks' additional pay and others, one week's salary.

At O'Neil's new department store, employes who were with the company when it opened for business here received a full week's pay. Others who have joined the sales forces recently, were given cash remembrances.

Employes who have been with the Barnes Manufacturing company for six months and over received $25. Workers with a shorter service record got $10. Employes also participate in the profit-sharing plan. Each employe was also given a turkey.

The Taylor Metal Products company gave 40 employes up to $200 in cash gifts today.

800,000 MILD NAZIS FREED

U. S. Grants Amnesty on Eve of Christmas to Hitler's 'Little People.'

FRANKFURT, Germany —(AP)—Approximately 800,000 "Little Nazis" in the American zone of occupation were granted amnesty today—the day before Christmas—by proclamation of Gen. Joseph T. McNarney, U. S. commander in Europe.

By the amnesty the number of Germans in the American zone liable to prosecution under denazification laws is reduced from approximately 3,000,000 to about 2,000,000.

The amnesty, the announcement said, will apply to all persons who are not chargeable under the "law of liberation from national socialism and militarism" as major offenders, or offenders whose yearly income during the calendar years 1943 and 1945 was less than 3,000 marks and whose taxable property in 1945 did not exceed 20,000 marks.

* * *

Disabled are Pardoned.

Also exempted from prosecution are persons not major offenders, or offenders who are more than 50 percent disabled. McNarney estimated that the amnesty would apply to approximately 800,000 persons.

The announcement, while coming virtually on Christmas Eve, was not regarded so much as a holiday present, but as a major change in American policy.

It appeared aimed at breaking the log-jam of multitudinous cases in denazification courts so that full attention could be directed to bringing major offenders to justice more quickly.

Approximately 11,000,000 Germans have been required to fill out denazification questionnaires and about 3,000,000 of that number have been found chargeable under the law.

BYRD'S SHIPS REACH BERGS

WITH THE BYRD EXPEDITION EN ROUTE TO THE SOUTH POLE—(INS)—The fourth American Antarctic expedition reported its first contact with Polar ice today.

A radio message from Capt. Charles Bond, commanding the sea-plane tender Currituck, said: "Many icebergs" sighted off Southern New Zealand.

Bond, from Collegeville, Penn., is expected to reach the inner Arctic circle early next week. He then will establish western base headquarters necessary for long range air operations before Little America can begin functioning.

Meanwhile, Lieut. Comdr. George Litteridge, expedition navigator, set Jan. 4 as the tentative date when this central and command task group actually will be pressing into the ice pack itself.

The recurrence of earthquakes on an almost global scale in the past five days brought from Dr. Paul Siple the suggestion that if the shocks had reached into Antarctic it may be found that the entire Bay of Whales has been cleared of ice.

Siple earlier predicted clashes between two converging ice packs in the bay would result in sweeping out ice shelves which had been growing since 1909.

The shelves had begun their massive battle just prior to the departure of the 1941 expedition from Little America.

It is his belief that the entire bay may be cleared by the accumulative effect of this process, but that a sudden shock could hasten it.

Sayda Gets Best Present of All

NEW YORK—(INS)—Nine-year-old Sayda Ayale of Puerto Rico will leave Bellevue hospital today with a Christmas present beyond price. She will be able to walk down the stairs and into the crisp winter air and—see.

Sayda underwent operations Dec. 16 for congenital cataracts. She had been blind from birth but now can distinguish the fingers of a hand held up 15 feet from her. Her sight is improving daily and her English is improving too although the only phrases she now knows are: "I can see, Merry Christmas."

Three Mailing Records Broken In Mansfield.

Off to a slow start, the Christmas mailing rush finally developed into an avalanche that broke three records at the Mansfield post office. Acting Postmaster Curtis L. Ford said today that available figures showed December was the biggest month in history, the third quarter the biggest in history, and 1946 the biggest year in the history of the post office.

Postal receipts as of midnight Monday totalling $51,469.10 were $1,508.82 ahead of receipts for all of December, 1945 and within $1,474.98 of the $52,983.80 record established in December, 1944.

Local mailing for the seven-day period ended Sunday totalled 983,933 pieces, exclusive of parcel post and incoming letters, cards and parcel post, Ford said. The highest single day total was 193,705.

Ford announced that the post office will be closed Christmas day. Mail may be dispatched and there will be the usual holiday collections but no carrier delivery. Parcel post delivery will be made Christmas morning if there is enough volume to warrant.

F. H. DRIVE HITS $17,000 MARK

A $1,150 check from the Hermit club members, presented by Irl (Santa) Fisher at the annual Friendly House Christmas party last night, boosted the $60,000 Friendly House campaign to the $17,000 mark.

The drive for a new settlement house on North Mulberry street, will end Jan. 15. Seventy per cent of the estimated building cost of $235,000 will be met by Mansfield manufacturers through the Richland Foundation.

Approximately 250 children attended the Christmas party. The Hermit club's check was presented by Fisher, club member, to Russell Gimbel, Friendly House director.

RUSSIANS KEEP GRIP ON DAIREN

By WILLIAM H. NEWTON
(Representing Combined World Press)

DAIREN, Manchuria —(U.P.)— Soviet Russia intends to retain full control of the city of Dairen —gateway to Manchuria — and will keep military forces there until after a peace treaty is signed with Japan, it was learned today.

This will be done under a technical definition of a clause in the Chinese-Soviet pact concerning Dairen which says: "In peacetime, Dairen is not included in the sphere of efficacy of naval base regulations determined by the agreement on Port Arthur of Aug. 14, 1945, and shall be subject to military supervision or control in this zone only in case of war against Japan."

The phrase "in peacetime" is the catch. Technically, China and Russia are still at war with Japan until a peace treaty is signed.

Despite the fact that two American correspondents who visited Dairen aboard a U. S. navy courier ship were refused permission to enter the city by Russian Commander Maj. Gen. V. U. Korzhanoff, a comprehensive picture of conditions under Soviet rule has been obtained from neutral and Chinese sources.

RICHLAND TO HAVE PARTLY-WHITE YULE

Richland county probably will have more of a gray than white Christmas, but Santa may find some snow left tonight to speed his sleigh and reindeer along.

The weatherman was nearly right yesterday when he predicted the snow would disappear. A few flurries were forecast for today in northern Ohio, but most of the state wil lhave little snow. All the snow was reported melted in the southern half of Ohio.

Forecast for tonight and tomorrow was generally fair and slightly colder. About normal winter weather was reported over most of the nation today

Board's Vote Quells Galion Controversy

GALION—A seething controversy over the political leanings of the director of the Galion Youth Center was quelled yesterday when the center's board of directors gave Mrs. Wilbur R. Eckstein a vote of confidence with 100 per cent backing.

Report of the special meeting, called to decide Mrs. Eckstein's eligibility for the leadership of the center, was given today by Miss Miriam Sayre, a member of the board.

Miss Sayre said that a thorough investigation of Mrs. Eckstein's activities had been made by the board and that "there was no evidence to substantiate charges that the woman is communistic or that she was promoting communistic ideas among the young people who frequented the youth center."

Reading Causes Flurry.

The question of Mrs. Eckstein's communistic standing was raised after she read a paper, entitled, "Patriotism, National Defense and Present Laws", before the Senior circle, Child Conservative League, on Nov. 11.

The paper caused an avalanche of criticism from townspeople, including members of the Galion chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, the Community Youth Center, Community Chest and the American Legion.

Board members said that the controversy also caused difficulty in making collections for the Community Chest, which gives financial support to the Youth Center.

At a meeting Sunday afternoon, Mrs. Eckstein was asked to reread the paper she had read before the Child Conservation league. She explained that much of the material for the paper was taken from a book, "While Time Remains," written by Leland Stowe.

'Savored of Communism.'

G. A. Berting, who helped to organize the Youth Center, said when he heard the paper read at the Sunday meeting he felt "it savored of communism." Miss Sayre's contention that it was not communistic brought about the Monday meeting for the board to decide the director's future standing.

Miss Sayre added that the topic Mrs. Eckstein chose for the paper was not of her own choosing, but an assignment of the program committee of the Child Conservation League.

Members of the board of directors of the Youth Center include Paul Zellers, Miss Sayre, Mrs. Robert Fink, Marvin Adams, Mrs. M. D. Bonstedt, Ed Rehm, M. A. Povenmire, M. G. Thompson and Mrs. Henry Stough.

The Sunday meeting was attended by civic leaders, industrialists, ministers and businessmen, school leaders and housewives as well as representatives of the American Legion post and other groups.

TAFT KEEPS EYE ON PRESIDENCY

WASHINGTON —(U.P.)—Despite disclaimers, Sen. Robert A. Taft, (R., O.) looked more today like a man who had an eye on the 1948 Republican presidential nomination.

His decision to take the chairmanship of the senate labor committee in the new congress, rather than the senate finance committee, contributed to the belief that Taft had given more than passing thought to presidential politics.

Taft further bolstered that belief last night when he said the time was near for a decision on whom Ohio Republicans will support for the 1948 nomination. The favorite sons are Taft and Sen. elect John W. Bricker.

Although he refrained from calling himself a candidate, Taft said he and Bricker would "sit down soon and decide this matter."

Ohio Republicans are no less anxious than Taft or Bricker to decide the 1948 candidate.

GOVERNOR RESIGNS TO BECOME SENATOR

HARRISBURG, Pa.—(INS)—U. S. Senator-elect Edward Martin today was drafting his resignation as governor of Pennsylvania, and will be present in congress January 3 to assume his new duties.

It was learned that he has advised Republican chieftains of his decision and has notified the Washington hotel where he will reside that he will occupy his small apartment between December 26 and January 1.

Lt. Gov. John C. Bell, jr., of Wynnewood, will take over the reins of the commonwealth when the governor resigns.

Pope Asks New Path to Peace

Unhappy World's Suspicion and Lack of Faith Breeds Threat of Another Conflict, Declares Pontiff.

VATICAN CITY—(U.P.)—Pope Pius XII said today in a Christmas message that the threat of a new war hangs over a deluded and unhappy world in which the Atlantic Charter has become merely a forgery of its original principles.

The pontiff urged the world's statesmen to make new approaches to peace making and act so that a true peace is achieved in 1947.

In solemn language he described to the college of cardinals and his world radio audience the "uncertain and fragile" status of world peace, the lack of faith and growth of suspicion among nations and the constant threat of new conflict.

The Pope said the world is suffering from "a new illness of humanity" which already is too evident in the slow progress of peace making.

"Humanity which has just come out of a horrible war is looking at an abyss between the hopes of yesterday and the realities of today," he told the college cardinals in a speech broadcast to the world.

* * *

Recalls Surge of Hope.

The pontiff recalled the world's surge of hope when the Atlantic Charter was drafted in 1942 by the late President Roosevelt and Winston Churchill, then the British prime minister.

"What has remained of it and its terms?" he asked. In reply he said little had remained but a shadow, counterfeit or forgery of the original document.

He warned that present troubled world conditions might even lead to war.

"Instead of starting on the road of true pacification in vast territories of the globe, in vast regions, above all of Europe, the peoples find themselves in a state of constant agitation which in the future more or less near could give way to the flames of new conflicts," he said.

"We very willingly recognize the unceasing efforts of outstanding statesmen" working for the peace desired by the world, the pontiff continued.

"However, the contrasts of opinion, lack of faith and reciprocal suspicion, the discussable value in the fact and the right of many decisions already taken or still to be taken have rendered them (peace efforts) uncertain and fragile."

Delusion and unhappiness have been left in the depth of many hearts by "the compromises and solutions based on strength or on the prestige of political power," he said.

Chances Are Mama Can't Cook Turkey

CHICAGO—(U.P.)—If mama prepared dinner tomorrow in the same frame of mind she uses when buying an Easter bonnet, a lot of American families would enjoy their Christmas turkey more, Chef Guido Morri said today.

But Morri said the chances were slim. Mama probably doesn't know how to cook a turkey properly.

"In fact, at least 65 per cent of the American women don't know how to cook anything properly," he said. "They never use enough seasoning."

Morri, chef at the Pump room, a hotel dining room that specializes in serving food in flames, said the only American women who knew beans about cooking came to the U. S. from France, Italy and Germany.

"I came from Italy myself," he said. "There the women work hard over their cooking. They regard it as an art.

"But American women cook in too much of a hurry, and their husbands regard eating as something you do to stay alive, instead of enjoying it."

LAKE FINANCES RUNNING LOW

City Appropriates All But $6,300 of $800,000 Set Up For Project.

Only $6,300 remained unappropriated in the city's Clear Fork project fund today as city council set up additional funds to pay for clearing reservoir land.

Originally the fund totaled $800,000. It is estimated at least another $200,000 will be needed before new water will flow in Mansfield's "veins."

Council, meeting in special session last night, appropriated $74,000 for the clearing job. The money is sufficient to cover only one of four bids for the job, that of M. P. Teter and John Richardson, partners of Lexington. They asked $73,800.

Money so far appropriated has paid for, or will be used to pay for, most of the 2,100 acres needed for the project, the dam and the clearing work.

Money now will have to be provided for a purification plant and pipe lines.

The project, designed to triple the city's water supply, is expected to start serving the city late in 1948.

* * *

Leases Building.

Council last night also agreed to lease to the government for $1 a year a building at the airport for an inter-state airway communications station.

A two-year license was granted to John M. Gottfried for the installation of waste-paper containers in the downtown section. The containers will carry advertising.

Legislation to proceed with construction of a sanitary sewer in the Reform street area was voted and council agreed to the vacating of the first alley north of Orange street, extending from Beymiller street to the Rocky Fork creek.

Transfer of $860 from various funds to allow for payment of year-end bills was voted and payment of a $600 bill for equipment and wiring of a water pumping station was authorized.

An appropriation of $139 for rental of a water pump and motor was voted and payment of $54 in claims against the city was authorized. One involved damages of $25 by a fire engine to a car owned by R. W. Smith.

ARNALL TO STAY 'TIL LAW CLEAR

ATLANTA, Ga.—(U.P.)Gov. Ellis Arnall declared today he was entitled under the constitution because of the death of Gov.-elect Eugene Talmadge, to hold office four more years but that he would remain governor only long enough for a line of succession to be established and then resign.

"I announce definitely to the people of Georgia that this is the course I will pursue in order to carry out their expressed will," Arnall said in a 400-word written statement.

His declaration followed announcement by Lt. Gov.-elect M. E. Thompson that the people expected him to succeed the late Eugene Talmadge, who was buried yesterday just three weeks before he was to take office.

It also followed opening of a determined campaign by Talmadge forces to ask the legislature next month to elect his son, Herman.

Arnall had been scheduled to vacate the executive post on Jan. 14.

Meanwhile, Thompson said that voters "expect me" to succeed to the vacancy.

"I hope that no one will dare resort to trickery or legal technicalities to thwart the expressed will of the people," he said.

Thompson declared that the electorate knew their choice for lieutenant governor "would succeed to the vacancy in the event of the death or disability" of Talmadge.

N-J Not to Publish On Christmas Day.

John Snips, Eileen Views, Now John's the 'Tree' at His House

By JOHN MINE

Trimmin' Christmas trees is for artists and sculptors—and guys with double-jointed backs. It ain't for ME!

Because I thought I could do the job it'll be ME who's trimmed—literally—Christmas morning. (Wonder how I'll look with a lighted star clamped on my head?)

It all began when the wife insisted that the tree was a wee bit lop-sided.

"You ought to trim off that long branch near the bottom and that twisted one at the top. Then it'll look perfect," she declared.

Before I knew it I had a pair of shears in my hand and was making like Joe the Barber—Yule-style!

"Careful now—be CAREFUL," the wife warned as I grabbed for the long one at the bottom. "Don't cut off too much."

I snipped and Eileen—that's the wife—stepped back, rubbing her chin.

"Well, ah," she mused, "that looks pretty good. Now get the one at the top."

* * *

I snipped again. Eileen stepped back even farther, squinted, rubbed her chin some more. And then it began.

"Honey, I think that looks PRETTY good—but don't you think you should take a little more off of that one right there?" And she pointed to a dejected, harmless-looking little branch, nestled behind the trunk.

I sighed—realizing what this could lead to—and flopped on my stomach. Worming my way toward the "enemy," I brandished my shears and snipped again.

"How's that look?" I called out, feeling for all the world like a hunk of human tinsel. I was draped over one branch and another was poking me in the ribs.

"Er—ah—I don't know," she answered. "Can you get that long, scraggly-looking one by your knee there?" she said as she stepped back again, squinting.

Well, you can guess the rest. One good snip led to another.

* * *

Tomorrow, with a string of lights in one hand and a bunch of ornaments in the other, I'll stand in the corner at the Maison Mine.

Tinsel will be draped over my arms and I'll be blowing "snow" off my nose.

Little children will clap hands at the bright, shining star which will be clamped to my head.

I'll be the tree at the Mines' house!

BREAKS INTO HOUSE, SLAIN

NEW LONDON—Curlon Twyman 39, a railroad worker, was shot to death early last night by John Norris, 110 Third street, when Twyman broke into the Norris home, threatened Mrs. Norris, and destroyed property, Police Chief Lum Rogers, said.

Dr. J. D. Bradish, Huron county coroner, returned a verdict of justifiable homicide.

After Twyman had forced entrance at the Norris home, he began breaking up furniture and tipped over the Christmas tree, Rogers said. When Mrs. Norris remonstrated with him, he knocked her down and threatened to kill her, police were told. Norris, 70, got his shotgun and when Twyman became abusive to his wife, he shot him, the charge entering the right shoulder, Chief Rogers said. Twyman died almost instantly.

Twyman, who had given his residence as Cincinnati, was a member of the work gang for the New York Central railroad here.

A preliminary hearing of the case scheduled for today at 10 a. m. at the office of Mayor Wilmer White, was postponed. Norris was released on bond of $100.

The body of Twyman was taken to the Sackett funeral home here.

12 Bicycles Ready For Sons Of Loudest, Longest Bidders

There should be at least 12, bright-eyed, bicycle-riding boys in Mansfield tomorrow. Who they are will depend upon whose pop bids the loudest and longest.

The 'cycles have been collected by police since 1943. They were stolen, then recovered by police but have never been claimed by their owners.

Today they were to go to the highest bidder—in time to be polished, tied with ribbon and placed in a commanding spot near 12 Christmas trees.

Auctioneer Detective F. Bruce Friday was warming up his vocal cords this morning in readiness for the sale, set for 1 p. m. Receipts from the auction go to the police pension fund.

Police still have five other unclaimed bicycles recovered during the year which must be held for 12 months before they are eligible for auction.

Much other equipment recovered by police was being readied for the auction block today, too, including many auto and truck tires.

NEW HOUSING RULES GO IN FORCE TODAY

Regulation Changes Bring End To Priority System.

WASHINGTON —(AP)— Regulations for construction of new homes, as announced by top housing officials, become effective today.

These include a 1500-square-foot limit on floor area which officials said would permit construction of a standard, three-bedroom home, and a prohibition against the equipping of more than one bathroom..

The new regulations were made public by Federal Housing Expediter Frank R. Creedon and National Housing Administrator Raymond M. Foley at a joint news conference yesterday. They take effect simultaneously with an end of the priorities system established under the veterans emergency housing program.

Priorities Honored.

Although outstanding priorities will be honored, builders using them still will be held to previous restrictions, including a $10,000 cost ceiling, an $80 rental limit and the meeting of standards and inspection requirements of the old system.

Most of these limitations will be junked for those who obtain federal permits beginning today, although maximum rentals will continue to be fixed by FHA on houses or apartments built for rent. The $80 rental ceiling will be adhered to only as an average rental for a project, plus service charges up to $3 per room.

Applications may be made by either a veteran or a non-veteran who wishes to build a house for his own occupancy, or a builder who wishes to build dwellings to which veterans will be given preference in purchase or renting.

In addition, a vetern is eligible to make alterations or repairs on a dwelling up to $10,000. Alterations and repairs of less than $400 may be made without a federal permit.

These additional restrictions will be imposed under the new permit system:

The dwellings must be suitable and intended for year-around occupancy.

Builders of dwellings for sale to veterans are required to hold them for veterans for 60 days after completion; rental properties must be held for 30 days for veterans preference.

Permits may be obtained to add rooms to house additional veterans, or members of the applicant's family but the estimated construction cost may not exceed $1,500 per person.

GUESTS OF WESTINGHOUSE—More than 1,100 children of Westinghouse employes were entertained at the company's annual children's Christmas party Monday morning. Sponsored by the Industrial Relations department of the company, the party was shifted to the Ohio theater because of "outgrown" facilities in the plant auditorium. All children present were between 5 and 10. The program included group singing, a special color film of circus life, a theatrical unit from Columbus and the appearance of Santa with candy and a toy for each child. Fifteen Boy Scouts served as supervisors of the group inside the theater while Traffic Commissioner Frend C. Boals directed traffic to and from the theater.—(Photo by Westinghouse)

Burglars Take Gun, $45 in Cash

Thieves broke into the Yuncker Brothers sporting goods store, North Main street, and stole a $45 pistol and $15 in cash, police reported yesterday.

A window was smashed to gain entry sometime between late Saturday night and yesterday morning, officers said. The cash was taken from a register. The pistol was a German 9mm. Luger, police said.

FOX BOUNTIES TOTAL $1,644

There remained in the county's fox bounty fund only enough money to pay fees on two more foxes today after the feet of seven more of the animals were turned into the sheriff's department yesterday.

Thus far the county has paid $1,644 in bounties on 548 foxes. The Ohio law which permits the commissioners to pay bounties on the animals as a game conservation and pest control measure will expire next March 31, but commissioners are not expected to appropriate any more money for bounties.

They appropriated $150 as a supplementary fund several weeks ago in hopes that it would last until the expiration of the law.

Latest to claim bounties are Stanley Keiser, Lucas, R. D. 1; Charles N. Heuss, Lucas, R. D. 1; E. M. Murray, Lexington, R. D. 1, and Fred Ferrell, Perrysville, R. D. 2. Ferrell claimed the bounties on four animals while the others turned in only the feet of one fox each. Six of the animals were killed in Monroe township and one in Troy township.

'Tis the Night Before Christmas

ALONG Mansfield streets tonight echo the familiar melodies of Christmas carols. From windows gleam thousands of tiny colored lights, shining amid tinsel and icicles on fragrant boughs of evergreen. Last minute gifts are being wrapped in gaily colored tissue. Others are being brought out of carefully selected hiding places where they have been stowed away for days and weeks. In some homes gifts are already being exchanged in an atmosphere of happy shouts. In others, there is whispered excitement as the family prepares for the visit of St. Nicholas.

This is Christmas Eve in the heart of America.

* * *

WHAT are the carols? They are the joys of more than a thousand Yuletides packaged in the tissue of harmony and tied with melody's thread.

What are the lights and the trees? They are the symbols of festivity.

What are the gifts? They are the essence of Christmas itself. They represent the Christ Child who was given to the world. They represent His teaching—"Go, sell what thou hast and give to the poor."

* * *

TOMORROW is Christmas. Scholars have noted similar festivals in many lands and many religions at this time of year. The dark days of the year are past, soon the days will begin to lengthen. Scholars say this has had a profound effect on men's spirits since the earliest times.

But nobody need be a scholar—or even read one!—to sense the spirit of Christmas. It transcends carols, lights, trees and gifts. It is something born spontaneously in the heart. It cries out joyously, like the voice of Tiny Tim in Dickens' "A Christmas Carol", God bless us every one!

Respite From 'Civilization's' Troubles

AN ANTARCTIC exploring party is to leave the middle of January from Beaumont, Tex., for a stay of a year and a half at the South Pole. The leader is Commander Finn Ronne, who went "down under" in 1933 as ski expert under Admiral Byrd, and is the son of Martin Ronne who accompanied Byrd on the trail-blazing trip that first discovered Little America.

The present party of 20 includes physicists, geologists, meteorologists, glacialists, mineralogists. These experts will study mineral deposits including gold and silver, cosmic radiation, weather, winds, water currents, glaciers, animal and bird life. They are taking along enough food for the 18 months, oil for the ship and 30 tons of coal to keep them warm. They expect to moor their ship by March 1, the beginning of the antarctic winter, and work inland where they will stay through the long months of darkness.

It sounds like high adventure, and while it is bound to be a rigorous experience, many sit-by-the-fire folks will envy those young men. They are going to escape a lot of civilization's headaches that are in store for the rest of their fellow citizens who will be up here following the old routine of earning a living and spending it.

What will the world be like up here, when they get back, some time in mid-summer of 1948? Will the UN be functioning and the atom bomb disposed of? And who will be running for president of these United States?

Potatoes Lose Their Vitamins

POTATOES lose their best qualities in storage and in cooking, says Leonard A. Maynard, director of the Cornell university school of nutrition. Potatoes have vitamin C, most of which is lost before arrival at the table.

Storage is something that the average housewife cannot remedy, but she might improve her cooking methods.

Claude Callan presents a cheerful thought: "You are very fortunate if you have a hard time in your youth. Then you will not look regretfully back to it in your old age."

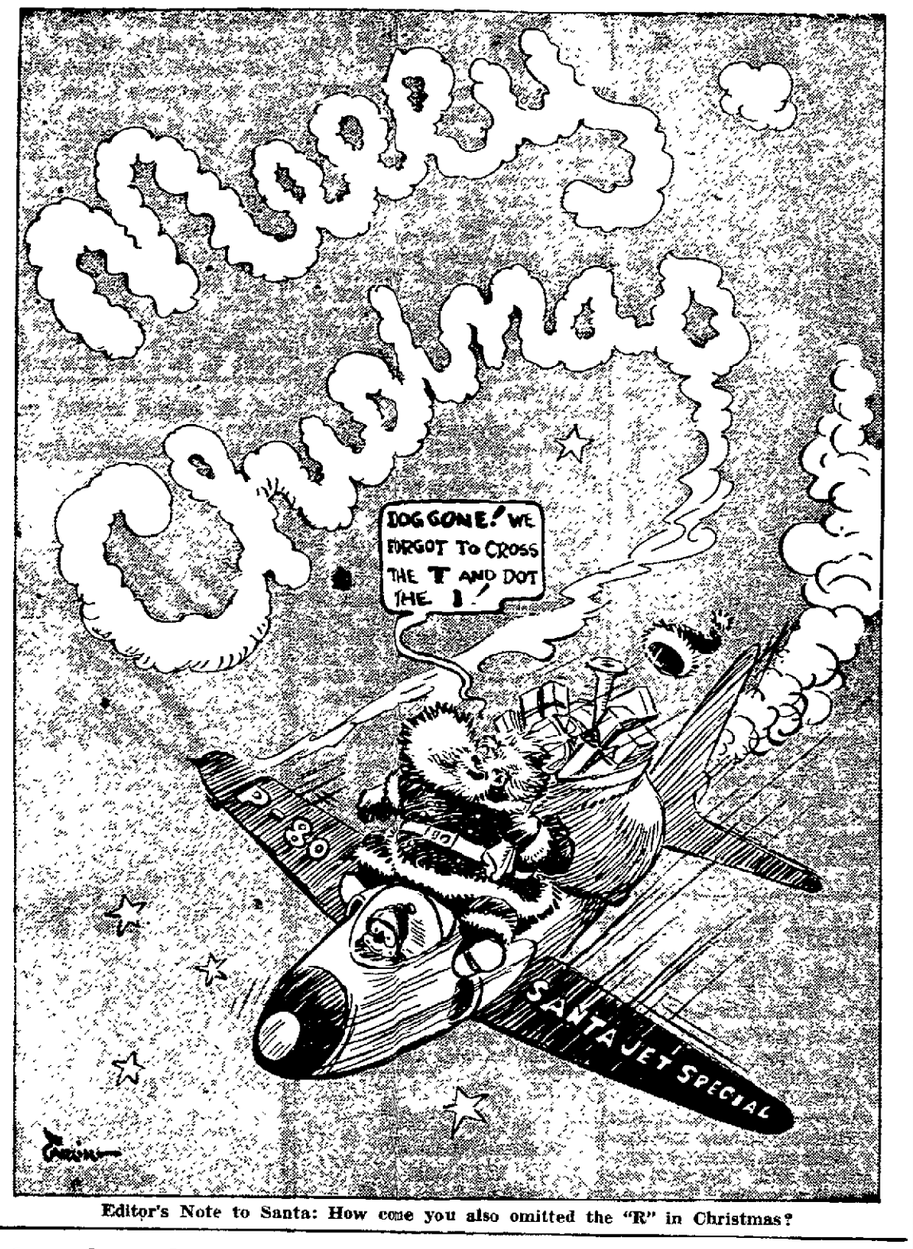
Disappointment awaits those who expect a gadget to "pay for itself"—as is sometimes claimed by adepts in overstatement.

Drive carefully tomorrow—otherwise the Christmas dinner may be spoiled for those who are able to be present.

No use mailing it today—if you haven't already mailed it you might as well make it a New Year's greeting.

Likely as not, in another fifty years, these will be looked back upon as "the good old days."

ANYHOW, THE MESSAGE IS QUITE CLEAR



Editor's Note to Santa: How come you also omitted the "R" in Christmas?

Uncle Sam In Santa Claus Role Has Dealt Out Gifts Abundantly

By RAYMOND MOLEY

UNCLE SAM was a good Santa Claus to the world in 1946. The best evidence of this is the fact that mass starvation, so anxiously feared by Herbert Hoover when he began his journey early in the year, did not materialize.

There has been no repetition anywhere of the deplorable Bengal starvation of 1943. The world has been saved from death by hunger and it has been saved by the United States and Canada. We contributed 60 percent of the grains and other foodstuffs from our 1945-46 production and reserves. We sent all we could and in so doing we deliberately disrupted our food price structure.

Hence, the contribution came not from some impersonal entity called government, but from every man and woman who bought food in this country in the whole year.

On the shortest notice we provided ships, port facilities and organization. We were able, through that organization, to get additional help from those nations which had surpluses to spare. We contributed 72 per cent of the UNRRA funds of $3,500,000,000.

And now, as we face a new year, we can be sure that there will be no world food emergency in 1947, although some countries like Germany and Austria will still be on short rations. Many other countries, having been helped over the emergency, can now support themselves.

We have provided seeds, fertilizer, machinery and equipment, which are the essentials of self-support. As a result, the world food production will be equal or larger than the prewar average.

The greatest increase took place in Europe and North Africa, particularly in the Mediterranean region. Improved prospects for autumn crops in India have resulted in greater deliveries to the markets than were anticipated, which will carry the country until the rice harvest is available in December. Crop prospects in China are better than they were last year. In Japan, the supply of food, in terms of calories, is nearly equivalent to the prewar average.

One of the achievements since the war has been the restoration of the Philippine cocoanut industry, with American help. Consequently, the total copra shipments are up to the prewar average.

But since we can never be sure of future demands, the government has urged American agriculture to produce at capacity next year. We do not dare risk any other course, although we must expect that countries able to pay for food will turn from us to other food producers, like Canada and Argentina.

We can only be sure that non-paying countries like Germany, Austria and Japan will still turn to us for help.

It may develop that we shall pay severely in over-production. Our potatoes are already a drag on the market. Surpluses may develop in other lines.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson, as chief reindeer in Uncle Sam's sled, has used much common sense in guiding the difficult course of balancing foreign and domestic needs.

This has been a brighter spot in an administration which had a good many failures this year. But, as was mentioned earlier in this piece, it is the American people who have paid in higher prices and bearable shortages for all that has been done. We have taken risks and paid generously, but the world has gained.

Drew Pearson Lists Gift Hopes Of Some Great and Near-Great

By DREW PEARSON

WASHINGTON—After a careful check of highly reliable authorities, the Washington Merry-Go-Round is able to publish the following Christmas list. It reveals what the great and near great are hoping to get—or else should get — in their Christmas stockings.

Here's hoping Santa Claus is good to them!

Harry Truman—A note in his stocking asks for fewer strikes, full production, a four-year subscription to Men's Wear.

Eleanor Roosevelt — A 28-hour day.

Secretary of the Treasury John Snyder—That a certain columnist, Werd Nosraep, spelled backward, would forget him for six months.

Secretary of Labor Lew Schwellenbach—Oh, to be back in Spokane! After a year at hard labor, the laundry business looks good to Lew.

Secretary of War Bob Patterson—Whispered to Santa that he wasn't choosy; there are nine jobs which interest him—all on the Supreme Court of the United States.

Republican Chairman Carroll Reece—A season pass to the Mayflower Hotel barber shop.

New Speaker Joe Martin—Two dozen unbreakable gavels and a good crystal ball.

Jimmy Byrnes — That Stalin would stop stalling, and that peace may come to stay.

Several Hundred Bureaucrats—Please, Santa! Swipe the pruning knife of Rep. John Taber, chairman of the house appropriations committee.

Secretary of Agriculture Anderson—May all farm lobbyists go home for good.

Secretary of Commerce Harriman—May the anti-trust laws be repealed.

Bernard Baruch—If Santa would only send me the combination to Gromyko's mind and Molotov's brain!

Chester Bowles—A fair Democratic party primary in Connecticut.

Chief Justice Fred Vinson—526 delegates to the next Democratic convention.

Senator Bob Taft—Bigger and better Gallup polls.

Senator Bob LaFollette — Any old thing to keep a good brain busy.

Economist Bob Nathan—A little anonymity.

Henry Kaiser—A few more cars off the assembly line at Willow Run.

Postmaster General Bob Hannegan—Another Roosevelt or a reasonably accurate facsimile thereof.

Harold Ickes—Ed Pauley's head on a silver platter.

Senator Theodore "The Man" Bilbo — Fewer probes and more dream-houses.

Labor Leader Bill Green—A cabana in Havana.

One Man's Opinion

—By WALTER KIERNAN

THE slogan of this Christmas was "Never have so many spent so much for so little" but we gave 'til it hurt—and somehow it doesn't hurt at Christmas.

* * *

This is a Christmas on which the world was really at peace except in China, Greece, Palestine and other places too numerous to mention.

* * *

Soon comes Jan. 1 and the New Year resolutions—and then we can go back to scrapping again.

Elsie Robinson

Listen World: "Message of the Star."

THE STAR that shone above the manger in old Bethlehem was not, as many now suppose, the opening candle for the Christmas era nor yet the single light for waiting, downtrodden Israel. It was a widening flame to herald a new promise to all the dark and desperate, brutal world.

The Child who lay beneath that star, although His body sprang from Jewish flesh, was later on to say to those who followed Him—Go forth and preach my message through the world to Gentiles and to Jews. The Gentiles, in the Jewish language, were those who lived outside the Jewish cult. And Christ himself, though born a Jew, loved and befriended and chose as His agents to spread forth His word both Greek and Israelite, and preached that word to any man of any blood who cared to listen.

He lived and worked and died not only for the Jews but for the whole world known in His day and all the world that was to come years after He had passed.

The Lord of Peace preached more than the amazing cult of Christian love. He preached a message which few men of His time, even the wisest of Egypt and Greece, had dared to face.

He preached the credo of world-wide tolerance, of universal love and gentleness, of understanding and deep rooted sympathy that recognized all men as brothers regardless of blood or breed. He preached the deep eternal dignity of human souls, regardless of rank or wealth or power.

I doubt if there has even been a time in human history when men have needed more that message which the Man from Nazareth first dared broadcast to a shocked and snarling world. Other years and other times have witnessed the inhumanity of man to man. They burned and crucified and flayed and broke the weak, protesting flesh. But we today do worse than that.

We still use whips and bullets, knives and lynching ropes on those we—in our Aryan arrogance—despise. But millions who have never held a whip or seen a lynching are as cruel or crueler. For they, in their false pride, flay the poor spirit . . . humble it to dust . . . and brand it if it be the slightest shade off white.

The man who still holds hate within his heart today . . . the woman who would deny a colored woman's right to song . . . the Jewish youngster's right to common, youthful joy . . . the Catholic right on grounds of religious creed . . . or scorns all whose long past grandpapas did not once pace the Mayflower's deck—they insult the star of Bethlehem as surely as any jungle savage ever did, and foul the hope the Holy Child once preached as certainly as does any atheist or fool.

I do not know what color or what creed you have who read this page, but this I know—

No one deserves the status of a civilized or enlightened man unless within his heart he dares to take and share the message of that one who first preached tolerance to a divided world and, knowing that His cross lay straight ahead, could still cry—take My message to all men.

Some Thoughts About Other Christmases.

WASHINGTON—Even on Christmas eve, it's easy to fall into a melancholy mood—to drift into that depressed state of mind where you even agree with the bitter neighbor who says "What's merry about it?"

There seems so many things wrong with the nation and the world—things that affect you personally—that, in spite of yourself, the holiday spirit slips away and bleak pessimism rules your mind.

Until you start remembering other Christmas eves.

About a decade ago, there was a depression, and a wandering, out-of-work reporter was hitchhiking along a 200-mile unbroken stretch of lonely New Mexico road.

Five years ago, it was a sad Christmas eve for a little New Mexico city which had sent a battery of boys to Bataan. Going from house to house among their sorrowing families, the reporter wondered if such heartbreak could ever cease—if we could ever win a war just started.

Three years ago, there was only snow and mud, murder and misery among the shredded olive trees along the Italian hillside outside San Vittore.

There was a cold-sleet-like mist in the air, occasionally torn apart by the splotching, splattering blast of a mortar shell. As two reporters crawled along from foxhole to foxhole, giving soldiers a prized drink of cognac and getting their names and addresses, the whole hillside was heavy with a lost and lonely feeling of frightened futility.

A year later on Christmas eve, the end somehow seemed farther away than ever—because it had seemed so close a week before. But Von Rundstedt's counter-offensive had run wild in the meantime, and in the snow-covered hills of the Ardennes, the Battle of the Bulge had developed into an icy struggle for sheer survival.

Hopes that had risen high faded and vanished in the fog and snow and bitter fighting, and once again there was only suffering and fear, danger and death ahead.

Men doubted that the break would ever come, and reporters caught their mood of futile misery . . .

Then, gradually, as you gaze into the crackling fire this Christmas Eve, you remember that that lonely reporter of long ago did get a ride and a job . . . That the depression did end . . . That the war was won . . . That the misery did finally come to an end . . . That death claimed but a comparative few of all those she courted.

Most important, you remember that compared to all those others, this really is a Merry Christmas!

Dave Boone Says:

ONE of the greatest experiences of the Christmas season is to take a seat in a church when the children are filing up to the manger and to see the expressions on their faces as they stand before it.

* * *

The children stand there with a light in their eyes that lifts the spirit of the onlooker. They seem one with the infant in the crib. You can't watch them without realizing that their awe and reverence and complete faith, if fully held by the grown-ups, would speed the day of the brotherhood of man.

* * *

The glory of the Lord shines around them as it shone around the crib at Bethlehem.

* * *

Simple and plain is the Bethlehem scene as the churches reproduce it, yet never again in life will any tableau, scene or show, though it cost millions and represent the highest skill of man, move a child so much.

* * *

If by any chance you haven't done it, go into a church this Christmas season and see for yourself. It will make you see the Star in the East again. And in your hands will be "gold and frankincense and myrrh."

As Others See It

Another "Old Custom."

An investigation of Communism at Indiana U reveals nothing in that line except the usual community of property rights in frat house neckties, and shirts in the seeker's size.—Detroit News.

Daily Bible Thought

Praise the Lord: for the Lord is good: sing praises unto His name: for it is pleasant.—Psalms 135:3.

THIS DAY IN HISTORY

On December 24, 1892, Benjamin Harrison, then president of the United States, issued a proclamation setting apart forest reserves in Colorado, California and Alaska.

Calvin A. Byers

Farmer's Diary: "Let Us Pray."

RECREATION in the form of honest, useful labor, might be the saving grace of all the world. Peace and noble purpose grow out of a great heart of sympathy—a clear understanding of how the "teeming millions" earn their livelihood by rough horny hands and aching muscles.

When our first statesmen assembled to discuss and sign our Declaration of Independence—our Constitution — they knew and shared the hardships with those who sent them. They knew they were making history, and in the midst of dissensions and lack of clear vision, one great soul suggested humbly that they had forgotten their greatest Source of strength. "Let us pray to God for guidance, that the government of this nation we are starting now may give its citizenry freedom to develop the noblest and the highest that lies within each one's capacity."

Devoted, consecrated statesmen—the greatest leaders of them all—were humblest . . . that blessed mood in which the greatest blessings of all the world are found. No wonder the vision expressed in our Constitution is marvelous . . . it was based on deep Christian convictions.

Had Napoleon worked in a plot of ground each day and felt the peace of being all alone so near the basic, elemental things—if he had learned to see the Creator's handiwork in every common plant, every common man, all France might have had a different history.

Exiled to Holland after World War I, ex-Kaiser Wilhelm did the simple duties about his home. Chopped wood to warm his house and cook his meals. Had the German ruler known sooner the peace and joy of robust health that comes with necessary simple labor, perhaps there might never have been a first World war, nor the destruction and slaughter of a second.

Can we think of our Abraham Lincoln and leave God out, at the United Nations peace conference of the world? Would the natural expression of our firm belief in Jesus, the Christ, offend the representatives of other faiths or no faith at all? Will a man fear to say grace—to thank God for his food—when hungry guests are at his own table?

Perhaps the air is smoke-clouded in the banquet hall—perhaps the thoughts of some are clouded with selfish interests. Perhaps rich food and sparkling drinks do not allow the mood for higher planes of thought, where one may speak with his Creator and know genuine fellowship with all humanity.

No wonder such conferences are empty and ineffective. The heart and soul of all the good that might have been has gone away. As when Mary and Joseph knocked at the door of the inn, there is no room.

Yet humble shepherds and wise men watch and pray in the hills of every country. . . . God make every village a Bethlehem, give every stable a ready manger for the little Prince of Peace.

The Child Who Had No Birthday

A CHRISTMAS LEGEND

By KEN WOODMAN

THERE ONCE WAS a little girl who had no birthday. Now this is very strange because, as you know, everybody who is born must have a birthday. But this little girl was born on the twenty-fifth of December and that is Christmas Day. Whenever the twenty-fifth of December came around, people talked of gifts and parties but none of the gifts and parties were really for the little girl—or so it seemed to her—but rather they were for Christmas.

Everyone was always very happy on the twenty-fifth of December and they always had a wonderful time exchanging presents, making little surprises for each other and serving wonderful dinners. Many times the little girl was the guest of honor at Christmas parties. Always, too, she received extra gifts. But she was unhappy.

December twenty-fifth was the birthday of the Christ Child. That was really what made everyone so gay and generous. That was really why pretty candles burned on the table and on the mantle. December twenty-fifth was not a gala day just especially for HER as were the birthdays of her friends.

Now this little girl never told anyone that she was unhappy about her birthday. She just kept her misery locked up inside herself and when she heard the beautiful story of the Christ Child every year she said to herself: "But Heaven was not fair to me. I do not even have a birthday of my own."

* * *

ONE Christmas eve when it was snowing outside and every tree and bush was as beautiful as a Christmas tree, the little girl went to bed early. Outside she could hear the carolers singing "Noel" and "It Came Upon the Midnight Clear." But she did not have the Christmas spirit. She shed two very large tears as she thought about tomorrow being a holiday for almost the whole world instead of her very own holiday.

Then a very strange thing happened.

Maybe it was moonlight reflecting on the snow outside and the voices of the carolers but it seemed as if her room were filled suddenly with a soft, lovely light and melodious music.

Standing in the middle of the room the little girl thought she saw a man in long gold and scarlet robes. He had a white beard and a jeweled turban on his head. He spoke in a strange language but oddly she could understand everything he said.

"One night, long, long ago," he began. "Two friends and I went to take a birthday present to a little child who was born in a far-away land. Our journey was so long that we had to be led by a star. The little baby was quite poor. He did not even have a nice room to be born in. He was born in a stable because his father and mother were on a trip to pay taxes just like everyone else in that country and all the inns and homes were crowded.

"When this baby grew up he had to share everything with other children in the family and there was not a great deal to share. You would have thought that he would be very eager to get something for himself. But he was not. He taught people that wealth was nothing except as it brought happiness to others. Finally, having nothing else to give, he gave up his life to prove that all men are brothers and should be kind to each other.

"Now," said the man in the gold and scarlet robe, "almost the whole world celebrates this baby's birthday. And they do it in just the way that made him happiest—by being kind and generous to others."

Again the light and the melody swirled through the room and the bearded man disappeared.

The little girl felt just a wee bit ashamed of herself. She was ashamed because she had not realized how wonderful it was to share her birthday with a poor baby who grew up to be such a kind and wonderful man.

She decided that if she got an extra gift tomorrow because it was her birthday—and she knew she would!—she would give that present, whatever it was, to the girl down the street who had a birthday of her own but never got many gifts because her daddy was ill and her mother had to work for the family.

This thought suddenly made the little girl very happy. Her tears vanished. She ran to the window and called down to the carolers who were singing "Silent Night" at her very doorstep.

"Merry Christmas!" she cried, because that seemed much more important to her than anything

Broadway

By Dorothy Kilgallen

If I Were Santa Claus—I don't think I'd look my best in a fluffy white beard, and I'm much happier in a Broadway taxi than a reindeer sleigh. But still, whenever Christmas rolls around, I wish I were Santa Claus. What presents I'd stuff into famous stockings! What treasures I'd leave under celebrated trees!

* * *

Into President Truman's sock for instance, I'd drop a player piano—one of those fine- old-fashioned jobs that hits all the right notes without half trying . . . For Artie Shaw, I'd leave a special kind of calendar—with shocking pink circles around all the days on which his alimony payments come due. . . . I'd bring Lana Turner a one and only, instead of here-today-gone tomorrow romance. . . . Barney Baruch would get a plush-seated, glass- enclosed park bench, with attached airplane motor for quick transferral to Lake Success, Washington and points west.

* * *

On behalf of Rodgers and Hammerstein I'd see to it that at least three new States are added to the Union immediately, all of them with nice rhyme-able names. . . . I'd put an electric refrigerator in Eugene O'Neill's argyles, so he can stop worrying about that Iceman, once and for all. . . . And I'd hire a Fairy Godmother to turn every stenographer's blended muskrat into a wild mink. . . . W. C. Fields would get a copy of "The Lost Weekend," autographed by Mrs. D. Leigh Colvin. . . . And the small package I'd leave under John L. Lewis' fragrant pine would be a certificate for a six weeks' course in charm.

* * *

What a Santa Claus I'd make! I'd whisk down from the North Pole with the mantle of Sarah Bernhardt for Ingrid Bergman—the coat fits. . . . Toots Shor would get a translation of Cicero's invectives against Cataline, because those insults are just as good today as they were in ancient Rome, and it might give the classic Crum Bum a few new ideas.

* * *

Out of my roomy sack I'd pull a batch of good roles for Clark Gable, Jimmy Stewart and Robert Montgomery, who fought a pretty good war—remember? . . . A new hat for Eddy Duchin, who is wearing a 1939 model. To prove his head isn't getting any bigger? . . . A season ticket to the Metropolitan opera for Margaret Truman — and maybe a magic cloak that would make her invisible to Secret Service men on romantic evenings. . . . And for the schoolboy's hero, Joe DiMaggio, a bat. But a special kind of bat—one that will give Joe his old .387 batting average next season.

* * *

I'd toss a Polish-English dictionary on Jan Kiepura's hearth, and Secretary Byrnes would get a pearl-inlaid chess set so he could practice strategy in his spare time. . . . For James Mason's library, I'd provide a copy of Dale Carnegie's 'How To Win Friends And Influence Americans." (Why is everybody mad at that boy?) . . . My toy for Sinatra would be something he must want desperately—an old-fashioned fountain pen that would squirt ink on autograph-squealers who try to steal his bow ties. Maybe he'd give a lot, too, for a group of Spence school undergrads as his fan club. . . . I'd provide Hopalong Cassidy or Roy Rogers films for children who go to neighborhood movie houses, instead of the psychological sex dramas that are enforced film fare for so many of them now. . . . I'd give Betty Davis a picture in which just for a change she played Olivia DeHavilland's twin.

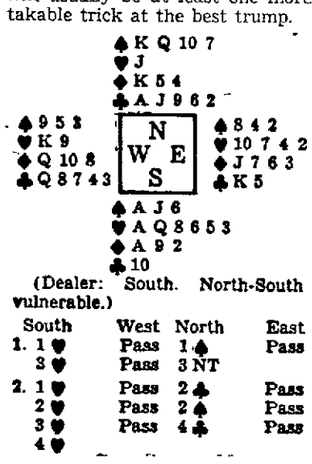
LIKE MOST other good ideas connected with the game, there is a limit on the soundness of preference for No Trump contracts in match-point duplicate. Many pretty good players make a practice of preferring a No Trump contract whenever they believe a game can be made at either a suit or No Trumps, since the same number of tricks for the declarer will pay 10 points more in that declaration than in a major. If the side holds balanced hands, that can pan out, but with a mixture of long and short suits, there will usually be at least one more takable trick at the best trump.



(Dealer: South. North-South vulnerable.)

South	West	North	East
1. 1 ♥	Pass	1 ♠	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	3 NT
2. 1 ♥	Pass	2 ♣	Pass
2 ♥	Pass	2 ♠	Pass
3 ♥	Pass	4 ♣	Pass
4 ♥

What extremely different styles of bidding at those two tables! At the first, both North and South seemed to be in a terrific hurry to reach a satisfactory destination, regardless of whether it was the most satisfactory or not. At the second, how gradually the partners proceeded, each as if he had implicit trust in the other. South explained after the hand that North would surely not pass his mere minimum rebid of 2-Hearts after having shown South he was strong enough to respond with a suit at the level of two Once again South was confident of showing his extra heart length without risk of a pass after North had given that "reverse" strength showing call of 2-Spades.

Note that, even with the bad fit North had for South's hearts, with a mere singleton jack, there was no way to prevent an extra trick at the suit bid, with only two tricks lost in trumps. In the No Trumps contract North scored only nine tricks, losing two each in the red suits after the diamond lead. Thus the pair in the suit scored 650, counting the 500 bonus for vulnerable game, and the No Trump pair only 600.

The old New England expression "to talk turkey" was coined in New Hampshire in the 1800's, when an Indian and a white man who had been hunting together met to divide the spoils—a crow and a turkey.

HOROSCOPE

For Wednesday, December 25.

THE spirit of Christmas pervades the hearts and homes this year exceptionally blessed with bounties and riches, the contentment, good cheer and hopes for "Peace to All Men of Good Will" to an unprecedented degree of promise; "the gloom of the world a receding shadow, behind it yet within our reach is joy."

Those whose birthday it is, whose ideas, aspirations, plans and objectives have been firmly established on bases of merit, loyalty, trustworthiness and due sense of obligation and duty to self and "all men" are sure to reap rich harvest and rewards

A child born on this day is splendidly endowed for a career of accomplishment.

For Thursday, December 26.

IT MIGHT be wise to prolong the holiday spirit of relaxation, diversion or hospitality for a period, since there are planetary aspects inciting to little exertion or initiative in atending to workaday plans or objectives

Those whose birthday it is may be required to abide in comparative rest, relaxation and patience during the year, since important matters arising for keen attack or decision, may present frustration, delay or congestion with which mentality and energies may not be able to cope.

Those whose birthday it is may be prone to serious and practical consideration of its obligations and disposed to procrastination in decisions or activities.

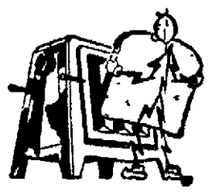
'TWAS THE NIGHT BEFORE CHRISTMAS

(REDDY KILOWATT VERSION)

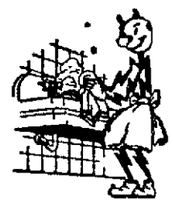
Twas the night before Christmas,
When all through the house,
Reddy Kilowatt was working,
As quiet as a mouse.

Reddy'd warmed baby's bottle,
And lighted its way to bed,
Then tip-toed to the kitchen,
As the others had to be fed.

A hot, delicious dinner,
Reddy'd cooked in the roaster,
And was johnnie-on-the-spot,
When Junior yelled for the toaster.



Reddy had perked the coffee,
And the dessert he'd easily mixed,
In fact every bit of the dinner,
Was by Reddy, electrically fixed.



When the dinner meal was over,
And the dishes by Reddy washed clean,
He hopped right into the living room,
As he was needed there on the scene.

He found Pa in his comfortable slippers,
Resting in his favorite chair,
So Reddy jumped into the lamp,
To provide light without any glare.

And Ma was at the radio,
Tuning in carols and songs,
So Reddy pops into the box,
To bring programs steady and strong.

Little Mary, and of course, Junior,
Reddy snuggled them into bed,
Under a warm electric blanket,
Covering them from feet to head

When the clock was slightly past eleven,
Ma and Pa decided to retire,
'Cause with Reddy Kilowatt on the job,
He'd control the furnace fire.

The kiddies' stockings were hung,
By the living room chimney with care,
While Reddy lighted the Christmas tree,
For Santa soon would be there.

The hundred-in-one jobs he'd finished,
Made Reddy shout in delight . . .

"Who's shmokin'?" asked Clancy.

One of Irvin Cobb's most popular stories concerned the little colored man who suddenly startled the community by joining in wedlock the fattest and most truculent old harridan in the county. The ill-matched pair settled in a cabin some seven miles from town, but a fortnight later came driving into Frankfort in a wagon containing all their household effects.

"Hello there, Mose," cried the postmaster. "Where are you going with all that plunder?" "I'se movin' into town, Mist' John." answered Mose. "I'se rented a little house by the L and N depot."

"But I thought you liked living in the country," said the postmaster. "I used to lak it," said Mose. "I used to lak it powerful. But my wife she don't lak the country. And yere lately I've tuck notice, Mist' John, dat we'en my wife don't lak a thing, I just natchelly hates it."

And Santa's work is all complete
While children frolic with their toys
Old St. Nick soaks his tired feet.

His helpers hurry to and fro'
They're gay as gay can be
They pack away his boots and hat
And bring him toast and tea.

The names are all checked off the lists,
The day has just begun
They know that when he's caught his breath
He'll join them in the fun.

Fair Enough

NEW YORK—Lewis J. Valentine, the retired police commissioner, who died last week, was put away with a modest decorum in contrast to the mawkish farewell to Jimmy Walker only a little while before. They were opposites in character and yet, when the good cop died, few were the tributes, and restrained, to a man who had done his duty and served the people better than they knew.

None of the self-important and mock-modest trash of the middleworld of Broadway and Hollywood, a twilight world which lies between habitual decency and the great badlands of corruption, always disparaging the one and patronizing the other, elbowed for white paper and radio time to eulogize a man who had properly despised their whole kind and would have been dishonored by their tributes.

But good men and women, who might properly have raised a sign over the dead end of a faithful servant just didn't know Valentine or what they owed him. And so, he went to his grave without public mourning, honored only by his family and friends and with only the formal respects of the police department and the city.

* * *

OF COURSE Mr. Valentine would not have had it otherwise. He always regarded himself as a person when he could have been a "celebrity" and he stuck to his duty, worked much harder than he need have and wore himself out, whereas Walker quit cold to temptation, shirked his responsibilities, betrayed the people's trust and, by the underworld's own code, dogged it under pressure. Jimmy came to the mayoralty with the confidence and, actually, the love, of a majority of the people of the city of New York. He had his chance. So did Valentine. Walker threw them down. He was a crook in office; he ran with rascals by preference who were delighted to run with him because their only hope of equality lies in degrading high position to their own level, and there is no way to measure the actual harm that he wrought in return for the affection of the people.

To what degree he impaired the people's confidence in their own ability to govern themselves by electing their officials; to what degree he planted cynicism in the hearts of a generation of children and young adults in New York and elsewhere, substituting slickness, flippancy and dishonor for the teachings of his own church, God will judge. Not even his old enemies hated him when he died and few of them hated him and many still loved him in his guiltiest years. But it is an ironic fact that these same people and the emotional opinionarians of New York, who probably do interpret the morals and feelings of the public, flooded the styx with a torrent of tears to float him across, but hardly knew that Valentine had been loyal, courageous, honest and industrious, in their behalf.

Well, God reward him, because the people he served hardly tipped their hats to his funeral so soon after the yowling and the blubbering, in print and on the air, for Jimmy. They are a funny race, the people.

Today and Tomorrow

ONE MEASURE of the success of the meeting in New York is that so many have put in claims for the credit. The official press in Moscow is saying that Messrs. Molotov and Vishinsky have circumvented the plans of reactionary circles all over the world to isolate the Soviet Union internationally and transform the United Nations into a tool of anti-Soviet policy. Here and in London there is much speculation and inquiry as to whether, and if so why, there has been a change of heart in the Kremlin.

If our object is to make people believe that the diplomatic contest has been won by somebody, then a plausible, but specious case, can be argued either way.

We can point to Iran, where the Soviets spectacularly withdrew their support of the puppet regime, to the inquiry on the Greek border, to the easing of the pressure on Turkey, to the disarmament and atomic energy agreements, to the compromise on Trieste, the declaration about the Danube, to the agenda for the German and Austrian treaties, and to the more friendly tone of Soviet diplomats and of the Soviet press.

But the Russians also have their catalogue of "victories." They got the recognition de jure of what the Red army achieved de facto in eastern Europe. They got a considerably better moral position in the colonial problem of Asia and Africa, and they seized the initiative on disarmament.

* * *

THE ACTUAL WINNER, it seems to me, was not either side, or any diplomat, but the facts of life. The agreements, which gave the effect of harmony in New York, register an acceptance by the three great powers of conditions which they sought to change but found they could not change. Thus there is no substantial difference between the treaties agreed to in New York and the armistice terms fixed by the Soviets nearly two years ago. Mr. Byrnes and Mr. Bevin have not penetrated the area behind the so-called iron curtain, and the Yalta declaration is as ineffective as ever. They reached agreement with Mr. Molotov by accepting the Soviet settlement of eastern Europe.

There is no use pretending that these agreements are a diplomatic victory; such agreements could have been had when Mr. Byrnes was in Moscow a year ago. Only then they were denounced as appeasement.

On the other hand, the Kremlin has accepted the fact that the Red army and its agents and its fifth column are unable now to advance into Iran, Turkey and Greece. The Kremlin thought they could. But they were checked by the dispatch of American forces to the Mediterranean, an act which righted the balance of power in language that was unmistakable to the realists of the Kremlin.

STORK SETS RECORD—

This morning at General hospital 94 mothers were served breakfast and that same number of squawling babies demanded their early feeding. That is the highest number of mothers and babies ever cared for at the hospital at one time. However, there will be some relief this afternoon. Many of the mothers and their offspring are going home for Christmas.

AN AUNT FOR CHRISTMAS!

At least one woman in Germany is going to have a happy Christmas. She is Mrs. Elizabeth Schneider, who wrote to a Mansfield minister asking that he help find her relatives here. Through the efforts of Mrs. Ray Coul, to whom Rev. Ben F. Hagelbarger gave the letter and an item in The News-Journal, Mrs. Schneider has found an aunt, Mrs. Bertha Hallabrin, 589 Springmill street. Mrs Hallabrin seeing the item in the paper, contacted Mrs. Coul and was given her niece's letter. She immediately sent a letter air mail, hoping that it arrives in time for Christmas and is now making arrangement through a Mansfield bank, to send money to her niece, who through the war lost track of her entire family.

SANTA PAYS VISIT—

Christmas took over at the city building today. Girl clerks with glints-in-eye merrily hung mistletoe in unsuspecting places. In some departments, gifts were exchanged. And for all to see was the building's annual Christmas tree around which employes were to sing carols before leaving for the holiday. Wreaths and holly were hung in nearly every office. High point of the day, however, was when the only Santa Claus on the city's payroll made his appearance Frank E. Haman, sewage treatment plant employe annually shows up in St. Nick garb to josh a bit, read poems and tell stories. Then he is off in a clatter—without reindeer, of course.

ROUGH ON SKATERS—

The weatherman just about spoiled the plans of Mansfield boys and girls to try out their Christmas skates. The city's park lakes were almost ready for skating last weekend when the snow came. Then there was the thaw yesterday, which left slush on the ice, and the freeze last night, leaving the ice rough and dangerouse. Park Supt Frank Burton said skating probably won't be any good now until all the ice melts and more is frozen without a snow coating.

ECHO OF BATTLE DAYS—

Anyone who remembers World War II remembers the five Sullivan brothers of Waterloo, Iowa, who went down with their ship during some of the heaviest fighting of the war. Yesterday, Ralph R. Schuler, 211 Rowland avenue, who served aboard the destroyer USS The Sullivans (named after the five boys) received a Christmas greeting, signed by Gen. Marie, "Mom" and "Pop" Sullivan. The signatures were of the sister and parents of the five victims. Schuler, who served as gunners' mate aboard the memorial ship, said that Mrs. Sullivan kept up a constant flow of letters to the boys aboard The Sullivan, keeping them informed, in a chatty, informal manner, of the doings of the Sullivan family.

'Wise Men' Decorate Trees For Victims Of Wreck With Gleaming U. S. Currency

By NITA BRANSON

Four very young GI's, swathed in bandages and critically burned, lay in Mansfield General hospital and thought, "What a heck of a Christmas this is going to be." Their minds were seared with the horrible memories of the Pennsylvania train wreck at Coulter Dec. 13. They were four of the victims.

And then suddenly—a miracle happened.

There came three modern wise men and their wives bearing gifts and small Christmas trees.

They began to trim the trees and suddenly there blossomed on the slender silver boughs, not gay colored balls, not bright gew-gaws, but BILLS!—U. S. currency, that is.

The young GIs could scarcely believe their eyes!

The tree lights were lighted. Boldly etched in the muted gleam, were crisp, new tens, twenties and ones—a total of $96 for each GI. And each bill was tied to the tree with a bright red ribbon!

The four GIs, each with his individual tree, are Privates Dale Curry, 19, of Decatur, Ill., Ivan Umphress, 20, of Urbana, Ill., Donald Adams, 17, of Danvers, Ill., and Siegfried Eberhardt, 19, of Madison, Wis. The wise men and their wives, Dr. and Mrs. James Herring, Mr. and Mrs. Richard Stewart and Rev. and Mrs. Carveth P. Mitchell.

The "wise men" came, as all true wise men do, as representatives. They acted for the congregation of the First English Lutheran church, which Sunday morning gave over $400 to provide a Christmas gift for four young wreck victims. The gift was made at the instigation of the pastor, Rev. Mitchell, who has been visiting the boys in the hospital.

The bills were not all, either. Each boy received from church members a modernized version of the New Testament, a beautiful reproduction of one of the famous paintings of Christ and a surprise package.

While such a Christmas gift cannot make up for the fact that Curry and Umphress are each going to lose an arm and that Adams has a critical leg injury or that Siegfried has suffered severe hands and face burns, it helps a little to know that strangers care that much.

They each echoed Ivan Umphress' sentiment, "We are very, very happy."

MODERN WISE MEN—Pvt. Siegfried Eberhardt, of Madison, Wis., was one of the four GIs, injured in the Pennsylvania train wreck at Coulter on Dec. 13, who received $96 in cash, a New Testament, a picture of Christ, a surprise package and poinsettias, from the First English Lutheran church at General hospital last night. Above, two of the "modern wise men" and their wives trim the tree and present the gifts. Turkey Outlook Grows Brighter

WASHINGTON — (UP) — Are turkeys too big for the little family this Christmas? Too expensive? Well, things should be different next year.

In 1947, according to the agriculture department, there will be more turkeys, economy-size turkeys and generally lower-priced turkeys. The department said the average American ate more turkey in the past two years than ever before. And he paid double 1939 prices for it.

TYGER CAGERS TRAVEL TO ELYRIA FRIDAY

FAIR OR FOUL

by LAWTON CARVER

International News Service

NEW YORK — (INS) — Club-owners in the National Professional Football league are finding themselves in ill-repute with Uncle Sam because of their attempts to lure football players, specifically Glenn Davis and Doc Blanchard away from the U. S. Military academy.

There is something to be said for both sides in this argument. From the government's standpoint the athlete has been taken into the military academy to be trained for soldiering at government expense. That cadet upon entry to the academy accepts the moral obligation to receive his commission for four years in the army.

What the football people should do, but probably won't, is reach an agreement whereby no player will be permitted to enter pro football until both his class has graduated and those additional four years have elapsed.

That would be a simple solution to a problem which currently is causing pro football another of several black eyes because of that recent speech of Maj. Gen. Maxwell D. Taylor's. The superintendent of the academy expressed amazement that the professionals would attempt to lure these cadets out of the army immediately upon graduation.

Both Davis and Blanchard have been, of course, drafted by both professional leagues, the National league and the All-America conference, and that's where the rub comes in.

The rivalry between the two leagues would prevent their getting together and outlawing the draft of cadets, even if the professional promoters of football felt that it would be in the interest of the game to discontinue bucking Uncle Sam's ire.

From the standpoint of the players, you have still another angle. They entered the academy as comparative youngsters and attained their game there to make themselves prizes for the professionals. Should they go ahead with an army career, beginning as peace-time second lieutenants, or drop out upon graduation and grab that sugar from the professionals?

I can answer that latter question. They accepted the rules of the academy and of the army when they sought appointment to West Point and their obligation to carry through is a duty.

That, of course, puts all the burden back on the players and it shouldn't be that way. The professional leagues should get together and agree on a policy of barring all service academy players until graduation of their class plus those years of service.

This not only would prevent a pro team from hiring these kids away from the army, but also would make it certain that no pro team could get to an academy standout and cajole him into flunking his courses so as to be available on the technicality that he was out of school.

You hear conflicting opinions on Davis and Blanchard. Some of the professionals insist they would be great in the cash and carry league and others are equally certain that they wouldn't stand up.

Be that as it may, they are the most sought after players of the moment when actually they belong to the United States government.

Davis Cup Star Suffers Injury

MELBOURNE —(UP)—America's chances of taking the Davis cup home were not helped today by the disclosure that the team's siege gun, Jack Kramer, had injured a small bone on the bottom of his foot.

Kramer insisted it was a small matter and would not handicap him, but nevertheless the trainer at Kooyong advised him to take it very easy in final practice sessions today and tomorrow.

PRE-TILT DOPE RATES RIVALS ON EVEN TERMS

Cline's 12-Point Average Tops Individual Scorers.

Mansfield Senior high basketeers will be out to regain a seat in the victory wagon when they travel to Elyria Friday night.

Coach Vern Hoffman's hoopmen had a three game victory skein snapped Saturday night by powerful Columbus Bexley, 62-50, but are rated on even terms with Elyria. Mansfield's record now stands at four victories and two defeats.

The Tygers were at their basket shooting best against Bexley, hitting 22 field goals in 64 attempts. The 34.4 percentage is enough to win 99 of a 100 games but did not match the Columbus team's sharpshooting. Bexley, with Jack Lewis hitting 12 times from the court, made 25 fielders.

Guards Ollie Cline and Nick Gagich, of Mansfield, both had their best nights against the Lions. Cline notched 19 points and Gagich 18. The former leads the Bengal scoring with 72 points, an average of 12 per game.

Pint-sized Tommy Bloor is second in the scoring column with 57 while Chuck Sisco has notched 52. Gagich is fourth with 39 but has scored 33 in the last three contests.

Hoffman is continuing to work Norbert Shibinsky and Bernie Weaver with the varsity in drills. When they gain the necessary experience, the two six-foot sophomores will be a welcome addition to the Tyger first squad. Sisco is the lone six-footer in the starting lineup.

Elyria has won two of five ball games this season. The upstate quintet won over Amhurst, 45-33 and Sandusky, 52-49 while losing to Cleveland Lincoln, 41-42; Cleveland Heights, 45-63 and Lakewood, 42-55. Six-foot, four-inch Johnny Krusz dumped in 27 points in the latter game.

Last season Elyria defeated Mansfield 57 to 55.

Elyria has averaged 45.1 points a game to Mansfield's 41.3 while the Tygers have the bulge on defense, 41.6 to 48.4.

Topping Says No Dissension

NEW YORK—(AP)—Dan Topping, owner of the football Yankees, disclaims knowledge of any dissension in the team but he says he plans to meet with Coach Ray Flaherty shortly to shape 1947 policy.

"At that time," Topping said yesterday, "we will decide on those players who are to remain and those who won't."

In answering published reports quoting Yankee players as saying they were dissatisfield with the Flaherty-Topping regime, Topping said "this is the first I've heard of any dissension" and added:

"We will study the situation and will have a statement to make soon. All I can say is that Ray Flaherty was hired to win ball games and a championship if possible. I must say he did win games and came close to the title. Just how he did it doesn't particularly concern me.

"As to reports that some players plan to desert the team for the National League, I can say that what we consider the nucleus of the 1947 ball club already is signed."

It had been reported that Ace Parker, Perry Schwartz, Pug Manders and Bruiser Kinnard were among the dissatisfied players. And it was learned that Parker and Schwartz were not among the group signing thus far.

JOY TO THE WORLD—Hap youngsters join in singing Christmas carols at the Yuletide party sponsored by the Hermit club last night in the Friendly House gymnasium. Individual members of the organization donated $1.10 to the campaign fund for building a new Friendly House. MINE OWNERS GOING AFTER PRO FRANCHISE

CLEVELAND — (AP)— A group of strip mine owners seeking a ball park in Cincinnati loomed today as a contender for Miami's place in the All-America Football conference.

"These fellows have the money, and they're willing to back a club to the hilt," Nick Wasylik, former Ohio State quarterback, who is dickering with conference commissioner Jim Crowley, said

Wasylik, assistant special services officer at the Chillicothe Veterans hospital, said six mine owners in the Mans Ferry and Bellaire section were willing to put up a quarter of a million dollars and had selected Cincinnati for the club.

Baltimore made a strong bid at the week-end conference meeting here for the spot vacated by Miami, but no definite decision was reached.

Wasylik outlined his plan to Crowley early Sunday morning following the close of the meeting and was told to "go ahead and let me know as quickly as possible what happens."

The new group was given until the end of the week to submit at least a preliminary report of its progress.

Mr. Shortstop Plans To Quit

CINCINNATI — (INS) — Eddie Miller, "Mr. Shortstop" to Cincinnati and Boston fans, disclosed today that he is quitting the game because of an ailing arm and his inability to clout for a "respectable" average.

The 29-year-old Redleg ace said he had asked Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler to place him on the voluntarily retired list.

Miller, a former Brave, led National league shortstops in fielding for three seasons. He was chosen for three all-star games. He asked to be excused from last year's star clash because of his throwing arm.

He said he would enter private business, but would not reveal the nature of his plans.

Middletown-Newark Contest Tops State Basketball Card

By DON STULL

COLUMBUS—(AP)—The Ohio high school basketball campaign goes into its customary Yuletide lull this week, but the state's top team—the mighty Middletown Middies—figures to be pretty busy during the hiatus.

The Middies, defending the Class A state championship with five victories in a row this season, face a perennial title contender in the Newark Wildcats at Middletown Friday.

And the Wildcats, who annexed state titles themselves in 1936, 1938 and 1943 as well as the tough Central Ohio league bunting last year, figure to provide the Middies their sternest test of the season.

Middletown will be after its 31st consecutive cage triumph, while the Wildcats will be trying to get back on the victory trail after a 46-27 loss (their first in six starts) yast week to the Coshocton Redskins, the same team which concluded a long football victory march for the Wildcats the past season.

The Wildcats get a second chance to interrupt a perfect season skein this week when they tangle with Hamilton Public's unbeaten quintet Saturday night. Hamilton has won five.

Several other impressive records were marred last week in games between unbeaten teams. Upper Arlington, winner of six straight, dumped Worthington, last year's class B runner-up, out of the unbeaten circle, 44-35; East Liverpool edged Alliance out, 43-42, as the Potters chalked up No. 4 in a row, and Salem kept its record at three straight by thumping previously unbeaten Columbiana, 33-25.

The first of a series of mid-season invitational tourneys being staged throughout the state was won by Bexley, a Columbus suburb, which dumped Akron North, 46 to 45, and stopped Mansfield, 62 to 50, to win a two-day joust at Mansfield.

Similar events are planned at Lima and Springfield late this week. At Lima, Toledo's defending city champ, Woodward, engages in a cage carnival with Findlay, Lorain and Lima Central. At Springfield, the contestants are Toledo Waite, New Philadelphia, Dayton Stivers and Springfield.

Declare More Draft Choices

CLEVELAND—(UP)—Five more football players, four of whom still have some college eligibility remaining, were named today as additional draft choices by the Cleveland Browns, 1946 champions of the All-American football conference.

Coach Paul Brown revealed that his team has picked Bob Chappius and Bob Carpenter of Michigan, Ralph Ellsworth of Texas, Bob Cowan of Indiana, and Jerry Cowhig of Notre Dame. Although the original college classes of each man already has graduated, only Ellsworth, who formerly played for Navy, is no longer eligible for college play.

Chappius, all Big Nine halfback, was voted the most valuable player on Michigan. Carpenter is a 235-pound tackle. Cowan played right half and Cowhig played fullback.

Stanford Defeats Hawaii

HONOLULU —(AP)— Stanford rolled up a touchdown in each of the first two periods tonight and went on to defeat the University of Hawaii in a football exhibition, 18-7. The Hawaiians scored in the third period and Stanford pushed over the finale in the last quarter.

Query Lippy Leo About Dice Games

CINCINNATI —(UP)— Baseball Commissioner A. B. Chandler had a "no comment" today to questions newsmen asked him after he revealed that Brooklyn Dodger Manager Leo Durocher had been questioned about alleged dice games in his New York apartment.

Columnist Westbrook Pegler charged that friends of Durocher used the apartment as the scene of crooked dice games. Chandler said he talked to Durocher for two hours on Nov. 22, but refused any details.

From Player To Coach

PROVIDENCE, R. I.—(UP)—Art Lessieur, former Montreal Canadien defenseman, took over as coach of the Providence Reds of the American Hockey league today after Gordon (Tony) Savage was dismissed because of a Reds slump. Savage will be retained as a scout.

Cardinals Add Fielding Title To Collection

By MILTON RICHMAN

NEWY ORK—(UP)—Manager Eddie Dyer's champion St. Louis Cardinals added another blue ribbon to their 1946 collection by leading all National league clubs in fielding with an impressive .980 average, official statistics revealed today.

The Cardinals committed the fewest errors of any club, 124, and edged the Chicago Cubs, who finished second in fielding, with a .976 average. Pittsburgh was the loosest fielding unit in the circuit with a last place mark of .970.

St. Louis, the New York Giants and Cincinnati Reds each boasted two individual fielding leaders while the Cubs, Braves and Phillies each contributed one player.

Second Baseman Ad (Red) Schoendienst and Third Baseman George Kurowski of the world champion Cardinals topped all candidates at their positions. Schoendienst had a mark of .984 and Kurowski's was .966.

The New York Giants' two representatives were Outfielder Sid Gordon and Shortstop John (Buddy) Kerr. Gordon had the best average of any flychaser in the league, .995, and Kerr was the best defensive shortstop with a .982 percentage.

In addition, the nimble, elongated Giant shortstop broke two fielding marks for his position by finishing the season with 52 consecutive errorless games and 286 successive faultless chances. Kerr's first accomplishment broke Leo Durocher's mark of 51 games without an error while he was with Cincinnati, and his latter feat erased Eddie Miller's mark of 251 chances accepted without an error while serving with the Braves in 1940. He has a chance to extend both marks next season.

Cincinnati's top two fielders were Outfielder Dain Clay with a .988 average and Catcher Ray Mueller, who showed a .994 percentage. By catching the Reds' first 16 games in 1946, Mueller extended his National league consecutive game record to 233. Mueller started his skein on July 31, 1943, and finished it on May 5, 1946.

Frank McCormick of the Phillies created a new National league standard for first basemen with his .999 average. McCormick erred only once while accepting 1,284 chances, thereby breaking the .997 mark posted by Walter Holke of the Braves in 1921.

The Braves, Tommy Holmes won the third outfield post with his .987 percentage and Johnny Schmitz of Chicago led the loop's pitchers with his 1.000 average, compiled by handling 61 changes flawlessly.

Other players who figured in National league fielding records last season included Pitcher Bob Chipman of the Cubs, who tied a circuit mark by starting three double plays against Boston on June 1.

Lonnie Frey of Cincinnati and Bob Blattner of the Giants each tied the major league record of 11 assists by a second baseman in a nine inning game, and Catcher Al Lopez, sent by the Pirates to Cleveland recently, caught 56 games and extended his own all-time major league record for games caught to 1,861.

Bruce Edwards of Brooklyn tied the big league record of three assists in an inning by a catcher against the Giants on Aug. 15.

BEVERAGEMEN TAKE CITY A LOOP LEAD

Richland Beverage took undisputed grip on first place in the first division of the City A cage league at the Senior high gym last night.

The Beveragemen defeated Yunckers, 37-26, for their fourth consecutive victory. This win puts the Beverage quintet one-half game ahead of Smokehouse and Komito's, who are idle over the Christmas holidays.

Dean Hahn led the winners with 17 points. The Richland courtmen led at the quarter 13-8, and at half 21-14.

Bob Boyd played an outstanding offensive game for the Sporting Goods store the first period. Boyd scored six of the eight tallies.

Bill Herpich paced the losers the second half. Scoring five field goals, Herpich pulled the Sports within four points of the Beverage combine, 24-20, going into the final stanza.

After a scoreless five minutes in the final frame, Jack Lyons sank two long shots for Yunckers to even the count. Here the victors opened fire and racked up 13 points before Yunckers could score again.

In the opening tilt, Barnes Manufacturing won its first game over McCarrick's Gulf, 41-30. Jack Hammett led the Barnes team with 18 points.

The winning combine was ahead all of the way, leading, 9-3, 19-11, and 26-23, at the intermission points.

Ohio Sports Center rang up a, 45-28, victory over AVC veterans, who have dropped four straight cage contests.

Building up a, 13-6, lead at the quarter, the Sports Center held the vets scoreless in the second period and were ahead, 23-6, at halftime.

Jack Elliot and Jimmy Toals scored 30 of the winners markers. Toals had 17, and Elliot sank 13 tallies.
